AFTER THE GAME

NO PROFIT ON NAVAL STORAGE

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 29.—Admission that the Pan-American Petroleum company did not make a profit on the construction of the naval storage facilities at Pearl Harbor, Honolulu, was wrung from Admiral Luther E Gregory, chief of the naval bureau of yards and docks, in cross-examination today in the government's suit to break the Elk Hills naval oil reserve leases.

The only benefit gained by the Doheny company in the deal was thru re-sale of royalty oil in the Elk Hills reserve, taken in exchange for the Pearl Harbor construction.

Gregory said that in most naval work the contractor was allowed 10 per cent profit of the work.

"In this case, then, for every dollar put into the Pearl Harbor project, the government gets $1.10?" queried Frank J. Hogan, chief defense counsel.

"That is an entirely fair assumption." Greggory admitted.

Government attorneys today moved to speed up their case in the suit under way to break the Elk Hills naval oil reserve leases held by E. L. Doheny's Pan-American Petroleum company.

Only about six more witnesses will be called by the prosecution, according to former Senator Atlee Pomerene and Owen J Roberts, named by the president to press the charges. It is expected the government's evidence will be all in by the end of this week.

According to latest reports, it is now expected the government will call to the witness stand either former Secretary of the Navy Edwin Denby or Rear Admiral J. K. Robinson, altho both have been here since the start of the trial.

The defense, however, is planning to use both these men in its effort to disprove the government's claims of fraud andconnivance in the leases granted Doheny's companies during the term of Albert B. Fall as secretary of the interior.

Expressing the belief that publicity of income tax payments is specifically called for by the latest legislation on the subject, a statement issued by Robert P. Scripps, editorial director, declares that the newspapers take their position "not because of any tendency or desire to defy the law, but on the contrary, because of a desire to serve the law."

MUST MAKE A CROSS

Secretary of State Pool has received a letter from a woman voter asking if the writing in of a name on the ballot is sufficient or whether a cross must also be made at the left of the name written in. He was advised by saying if he were an election officer he would say the writing in of a name was sufficient to show the intent of the voter to vote for the person whose name is written in, but the law plainly requires the making of a cross opposite the name written upon a ballot, so the only safe way is to make the required cross.

PROTESTS CALL FROM PROBERS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29—George K Norris, chairman of the republican state committee of New York, today telegraphed the senate campaign fund investigating committee protesting against being compelled to appear unless the democratic and independent state chairmen also are called Senator Caraway, Arkansas, acting chairman, ordered another summons issued for Morris and said the other chairmen would be called.

When the hearing was resumed this afternoon, Wm. Griffin of New York, vice president of the American Press association was called to the stand and testified he had endeavored without success to sell the republican national committee a $200,000 advertising campaign to be conducted in the doubtful western states.

Another firm got the contract with the committee. The only political advertisement handled by his firm, Griffin said, was one sixty inch advertisement placed in 369 papers in Illinois.

The republican central committee of Illinois paid $5,000 for the advertisement

Carl Murphy, negro, editor of Afro-American, published in Baltimore, Md., said he wrote President Coolidge asking him for a statement of his stand on the ku klux klan.

"Mr Slemp replied that he would call my letter to the president's attention," said Murphy.

Murphy testified he was invited by George H. Harris, director of the Colored Free of the Eastern republican headquarters to attend a banquet of nego editors in New York early in September He went to New York with his advertising manager and while there he was told that after he pledged himself to the Coolidge-Dawes ticket the republican committee would "talk about advertising in my paper."

"When they told us that, we left," said Murphy.

The witness said that the editor of the Atlanta Independent a negro paper, "objected to the language used."

"He said he did not think it was decent to couple advertising with a pledge to support Coolidge and Dawes," said Murphy.

Murphy added that the editor of the Chicago Defender, a negro paper, told him that he was given $10,000 by the republican organization.

"Whom are you supporting?" asked William L. Bourland, attorney for the republican national committee

"We are supporting LaFollette."

"Do you expect to live long enough to see President Coolidge tell his views on the klan?" asked Caraway

"It won't matter after November 4," replied Murphy

BRITISH IN AN ELECTION

Labor Government's Fate Is at Stake.

ZINOVIEV LETTER IS A FACTOR

Is a Blow to the Present Administration.

Twenty-two Million Voters to Express Sentiments During Day—MacDonald Men Have Little Hope.

An international incident of the first magnitude, involving in a measure the political fate of the British government, was the note dispatched to Moscow by Great Britain last week, on the subject of a subversive document attributed to Gregory Zinoviev, president of the executive of the third internationale.

A prompt reply from Russia branded the document in question as a forgery and arbitration to determine this has been suggested by the soviet government.

Meanwhile however, the "Zinoviev letter" became the burning issue and the battle cry in the closing days of the general elections in Great Britain and has become international in scope because of developments such as the Russian allegation that Poles prepared the document they declare serious. The letter made public in connection with the British protest to Russia recalls a similar document received by Secretary of State Hughes and which also was branded a fake by the soviet government at the time with the suggestion—not complied with—that the notes authenticity be subjected to test.

Premier MacDonald was campaigning in the north when the British note to Russia was dispatched and it was not until his speech at Cardiff on Monday that he expressed himself publicly on the subject. He then hinted at his suspicion of the "Zinoviev letter" being part of a political plot. Since there was considerable confusion concerning MacDonald's exact attitude toward the matter, the United Press today obtained from the Daily Herald, British labor daily which is in the nature of a semi-official mouthpiece for the government, the text of the premier's speech.

On Monday, in Cardiff, Wales, he said:

"This 'red letter' did not find its way into the foreign office until the tenth (of October). It was sent to me at Manchester on the fifteenth. I received it on the sixteenth.

"On the morning of the sixteenth, I minuted that the greatest care would have to be taken in discovering whether the letter was authentic or not. If it was authentic, it had to be published at once, and in the meantime, while investigations were going on to discover the authenticity of the letter, a draft of the letter to Rakovsky would be prepared so that when authenticity was established no time would be lost.

"On the twenty-first a trial draft was sent to me for my observations but it did not reach me until the twenty-third. On the morning of the twenty-fourth I looked at the draft, altered it and sent it back in altered form, expecting it to come back to me again, with proofs of authenticity, but that night it was published.

"I make no complaints. The foreign office and every official therein know my views about

SLOW IN FINDING OUT ROTTENNESS

Thorpe Wonders That LaFollette Did Not Discover Nature of Party Before Accepting Its Many Honors.

R. H. Thorpe, republican candidate for congressman, told university students Wednesday noon at a luncheon of the World Forum at the Grand hotel, that he sometimes questioned the sincerity of a man who had risen from a farm in Wisconsin to the senate in seeking to destroy the bridge thru which he mounted. "If the republican party is so rotten," he said, "I should think Mr LaFollette would have discovered it before he was seventy years of age."

Mr Thorpe said the great issue at present is the question of constitutional power, of constitutional liberty, and the proper respect for constitutional authority. The discordant conditions of the past few years he attributed to the aftermath of the war. To the students, he said: Those who seek to prejudice you against the republican party with its record of forty-eight years of service, should remember that those who live in glass houses should not throw stones." He spoke highly of the ability of John W. Davis and LaFollette and declared he did not believe in mud-slinging. The audience numbered about 150 people.

NOT A DEFENSE IN STATE

Nebraska Law, Says Attorney General, Doesn't Excuse Irresistible Impulse.

The fact that a man has an irresistible impulse to commit a crime is not a defense in a prosecution says Attorney General Spillman in a brief filed in supreme court in support of the conviction in Douglas county of James Sumner, sr., on the ground of criminal assault. His victim was his four year old granddaughter. Summer lived for a time with his son, and the little girl finally made complaint of his conduct.

Sumner, who is sixty-nine years old, in ill health and a widower, said he did not remember anything about it. Taken before the insanity board as a sufferer from senile dementia, the authorities refused to commit him as insane. The doctors said that he was not a fit subject for the asylum.

The lawyer for the old man put in the defense that he was suffering from the infirmities of old age, and that while he has mental capacity to distinguish between right and wrong, he cannot control irresistible impulses to do wrong when he knows that he is doing wrong. His attorney says that under the law of Nebraska a man thus handicapped cannot be convicted of crime.

The attorney general says that the supreme court has repeatedly held that accused persons who can tell the right from the wrong are responsible for their violations of law and subjects of punishment.

TAKES SLAP AT WHEELER

Clark Jeary Says Running Mate of LaFollette Should Be Demanding Own Trial.

DAWSON, Neb., Oct. 29—Clark Jeary senatorial candidate of Lincoln, in an address at a republican meeting here Tuesday night, said of Mr Wheeler, running mate of Senator LaFollette:

"If I were a candidate for vice president and had been indicted in my home state rather than travel about the country in a private car, defaming other candidates, I would take a chair car or go back home and insist upon an immediate trial."

Mr Jeary spoke for the national, state and legislative tickets. He commended the record of State Senator Wiltse and urged his re-election. He also praised the work of Dr. Reneker as member of the house in the last session.

STRAW VOTE WORTHLESS

CHAIRMAN ALLEN SAYS HISTORY OF POLLS SHOWS IT.

Cites From Records of Past to Indicate That Volunteer Ballotings Point to Nowhere.

The fact that the Literary Digest gives Coolidge about twice as many votes as Davis and about as many as Davis and LaFollette combined, is not daunting the soul of Chairman T. S. Allen of the democratic state committee.

"As a rule," says he, "they mean nothing. Digest polls in the past have been misleading in that the results they pointed at did not come about. In 1900 it showed that republicans would carry Maryland, Nebraska and Utah, when the democrats won all three. In 1908 the same wrong prediction is found in the cases of Colorado, Nebraska and Nevada.

"The Digest straw vote in 1916 pointed to a republican victory in Ohio, whereas the democrats carried it by 90,000. It indicated Hughes would get 60 percent of the vote in Indiana, Ohio and New Jersey, whereas he actually got 49 percent. The Digest straw vote last March showed 70 percent of the people favored the Mellon plan of taxing incomes, but congress turned it down.

"The Chicago Tribune has been conducting a straw vote that gives Coolidge the lead in Illinois. It had a similar plan in operation in 1912 that indicated Roosevelt would get more votes than Wilson and Taft. In fact Wilson won by a big margin, and the Roosevelt vote was less and the Taft vote more than predicted. It has been similarly at fault in predicting the number of electoral votes in 1912, the mayoralty elections in 1915 and in the gubernatorial and senatorial primary elections this year."

HUGHES SPEECH ENDORSED

Illinois Republicans Believe Secretary of State Clinched Campaign There.

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—Republican headquarters here today expressed confidence that the speech of Charles Evans Hughes, delivered here last night, had "successfully clinched the republican campaign in Illinois.

Hughes centered his address upon a "don't rock the boat" plea, insisting that "the best assurance of prosperity in this country is to secure on November 4 the election of Calvin Coolidge."

"It would not take much to destroy our prosperity," the secretary of state declared. "All you have to do is to shatter confidence. This would happen if the third party should really approach success. This would happen if the third party, or a combination of our opponents, could produce a deadlock in this election.

"To impair confidence all that is necessary is to create uncertainty as to the future. And with that uncertainty would come the cancellation of orders, the contraction of credits, reduced sales, idle plants and the saddest of all spectacles—the lack of work for men who wish to work."

Hughes rounded out his arguments for hte election of President Coolidge with bitter attacks upon the platforms of the democratic and independent parties.

Included in the topics for discussion during that week in this program "Revolutionists, communists and extreme pacifists are a menace to life, liberty, justice, security and opportunity guaranteed by the constitution."

WIFE SAYS HAD TO BUY

FIVE THOUSAND WAS PRICE OF DIVORCE SHE WANTED.

Now in Supreme Court Urging That Duress Was Used and She Desires Cancellation of Indebtedness.

As Mrs. Tillie Nicholas Clow tells the story, she wanted a divorce from her husband, William F. Nicholas, a Chase county farmer, in 1921, and her husband would not allow her to get it unless she paid him $5,000. In order to secure the fulfillment of her wishes she gave him a $5,000 mortgage on a half section of land in her name in that county, after which she went away, got her divorce and married Clow.

As Mr. Nicholas tells the story, he returned home one day to be met with a demand that she be allowed to get a divorce from him so that she might marry Clow. He demurred, whereupon she told him that if he did not she would make life miserable for him, and he might just as well do it now as eventually. He says that he owned the land at the time, and that he deeded it to her and she gave him back the $5,000 mortgage all as a way of settling their property rights, she claiming to have furnished most of the money that went into its original purchase.

Anyway, the two are now before the supreme court with their respective claims. He is seeking foreclosure of the mortgage, while she is resisting on the ground of no legal consideration and that she was forced into the agreement. Nicholas won in the court below, and the wife is appealing. He says that the reason he made no defense was that she told him she was going to one town in Wyoming to get the divorce, whereas she went to the other one, and in four days had her decree and a little later was again enjoying connubial bliss.

CONFESSION OF HOLMES

BANK ROBBER PLANNED SECOND JOB AT NORA.

Tells of Escape From Jail and Subsequent Robberies—Ralph E. Stahr Admits Self Inflicted Cut.

A signed confession by Herbert Holmes, robber of a bank at Bostwick, sentenced to the state reformatory and recaptured after escaping from the county jail at Nelson, was brought to Lincoln by Walter A. Schroeder, state finger print expert who was sent to Nelson by State Sheriff Carroll. Ralph F. Stahr, who was in jail with Holmes, also signed a confession admitting the falsity of his original statement that Holmes cut him with a knife and tied his hands behind him after he had tried to prevent Holmes from making his escape.

Stahr admits having helped Holmes attempt to escape and having promised to meet Holmes at Gilead but denies any knowledge of an agreement to rob another bank when Holmes was free. He admits agreeing to meet Holmes but alleges he had no intention of keeping that agreement when he made it. He also admits he promised when liberated temporarily to bring back some hack saw blades for Holmes, but he says he did not do so, claiming he did not have money to buy them. Stahr lives at Gilead where his father operates a store. He was in the county jail on the charge of issuing no-fund checks.

Holmes formerly lived at Unionport, O., and officers say he left there last August when a warrant was issued for his arrest on the charge of issuing a bad check for $900. Holmes was being held at the Nelson jail under sentence to the state reformatory from three to ten years for robbing the Bostwick state bank. The cash he got from this robbery was recovered from a waiting room in the depot at Superior when he left it on the floor in a valise.

"Stahr and I agreed that I would break jail and that he would meet me at Gilead, Neb.," says Holmes' confession, "on the night of October 22. He told me that I could get the guns from the hardware store in Nelson and we agreed after meeting in Gilead we would hold up the bank in that place on Thursday morning. He detailed to me the route which I was to take from Nelson to Gilead."

Officers interested in the case of Holmes expressed wonder that the escaped prisoner should remain near the scene of his crimes and continue to commit other robberies. They now believe Holmes remained for the purpose of robbing another bank, as he claims in his confession.

County Attorney H. A. Brybaker of Nuckolls says he will prosecute Holmes for escaping from jail, a crime punishable by imprisonment in the penitentiary. Holmes is willing to plead guilty. Whether Stahr is to be prosecuted for aiding Holmes to escape has not been announced.

Used Wire and Mirror.

The confession of Holmes says he escaped from the jail at Nelson on the night of October 19 by prying out the upper part of the steel door and then reaching down with a wire and pulling the staple from the hasp on the outside of the door. He obtained the wire in the jail. He made a hook on one end of the wire and used a mirror in slipping

COOLIDGE TALKS TO ADVERTISING MEN

Expresses Appreciation for Their Support in Campaign—Promises to Continue His Policies.

WASHINGTON, Oct 29.—Expressing his appreciation for their support in the campaign, President Coolidge today assured a delegation of advertising men that he would continue "those policies that have brought peace and prosperity."

Led by Frank P. Presby, president of the Coolidge and Dawes national advertisers league, more than forty advertising men at a breakfast in the white house with the president and Mrs. Coolidge, told the executive they were for the republican ticket "first, last and all the time."

Replying to Presby, Mr Coolidge declared it was "one of my great consolations" to have the support and approval of the business men of the country."

COME TO HEAR EVANGELIST.

A delegation of people from De Witt came to Lincoln Tuesday evening to hear Evangelist E. F. Manley speak at Calvary Evangelical church. Eleventh and Garfield. This was one of a series of evangelistic addresses being given this week at the church. Mr Manley spoke on the Lord's prayer. He said there is a big difference between knowing this prayer by heart and knowing it by heart.

DIRECTS RURAL WOMEN'S WORK

MRS. CHARLES SCHUTTLER.

Mrs. Schuttler from Missouri has been assigned by the republican national committee to the direction of organization work among women in the rural districts. She believes that the marketing of products is one of the greatest problems facing the farmer today. She is an advocate of good roads because, she says, it is a means of aiding the farmer in the solution of his problem. Mrs. Schuttler was in Nebraska a short time ago and will return late in the campaign.

SEVERE QUAKE IN ITALY

ROME, Oct. 29.—A severe earthquake during the night in the Rieti district centering near the town of Rivodutri caused the inhabitants to flee to the fields. They refused to return to their homes today and authorities are sending tents, so they may camp in the fields until their fears are abated.

SPEEDERS HARD HIT

TWO DRIVERS LOSE CARS FOR NINETY DAYS.

Racers Fined Dollar a Mile—Youth Dismissed by Police Judge in Hotly Contested Speed Charge.

Wednesday's session of police court marked a red letter day in the crusade against speeding. Following his recently inaugurated system of applying the padlock to the cars of particularly flagrant violaters of the speed law, Judge Chappell gave two youths their choice of paying $100 fines or turning over their cars to police for ninety days. They chose the later. Two youths charged with racing were fined a dollar a mile and another youth was dismissed when he contested a speed charge.

Jack Hamilton, 2038 D, high school student, and D. J. Hazelrigg, 2025 M, University Place, employe at the Havelock shops, were the youths who turned their cars over to police to be padlocked for ninety days rather than pay $100 speed fines. Both were old offenders. Three other youths, all university students, have been penalized by the padlock system since its inauguration October 10.

R. L. Burnham, 1446 Q, and Clyde Hardin, 2990 Dudley, were fined $35 each, or a dollar a mile, when they appeared on a speed charge. The young men had been racing, according to the complaining officer.

R. L. Eddingfield, 1118 Hill, who contested a speed charge, was dismissed. He was arrested Sunday evening just after entering the city limits on East O as he returned with several other carloads of people from Nebraska City. W. W. Cadwallader, F. J. Patz and L. A. Gartner, who were in the procession, testified that Eddingfield's car had been traveling at a rate of speed near their own when the officer stopped him. In each case they claimed they were not exceeding twenty miles an hour.

A. R. Corbet, employe at the gas station near Forty-sixth and O, stated that Motorcycle Officer Schappaugh had left the station to overtake a sedan which was traveling at a brisk clip. Whether it was the sedan Mr. Eddingfield was driving, Mr. Corbet did not know.

In dismissing the case Judge Chappell took into consideration, he said, the possibility of the motorcycle officer having missed a speeding car and stopped Mr Eddingfield's car by mistake. A number of cars were on the highway. A second consideration was the fact that Mr Eddingfield had appeared before on a traffic violation charge and without mincing matters, had pleaded guilty and paid his fine thus giving the judge the impression that he would not attempt to evade guilt in the speed charge.

MAN'S BACK IS BROKEN

NORFOLK, Neb., Oct 29—Ray Lynch, Creighton, suffered a broken back when a car which was being driven at a high speed knocked him down five miles east of Creighton Tuesday, according to word received here from Chief of Police Norman Burns of Creighton.

CHARGE THEATRICAL PUBLICITY PROFFER

LaFollette Supporter Alleges Vaudeville Cracks Offered for Sale.

GARDNER WAS APPROACHED

Preferred to Sell Political Advertising for "Bob."

COOLIDGE PARTY IS AIRED

Rhinelander Waldo Testifies He Arranged for Recent Visit of Stars to White House Which Cost $1,297.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—The charge that theatrical publicity, including "cracks and gags on the vaudeville stage" had been offered for sale to the LaFollette forces for $50,000 by a prominent theatrical agency was laid before the senate committee investigating campaign funds today.

Gilson Gardner, Washington newspaper men and supporter of LaFollette testified a representative of the McCutcheon-Gurston syndicate, a subsidiary of the Shubert Theatrical company, had told him his company was prepared to "sell political publicity and would rather give it to LaFollette than to the two old parties."

Gardner said he was told that for $50,000 the syndicate would have "cracks and gags" favorable to LaFollette in vaudeville acts, would put on various "stunts" and would give the independent candidate publicity in the movies.

Gardner told the committee he had refused and suggested the syndicate try the republican national committee.

Other testimony brought out at today's session of the committee included:

1—Rhinelander Waldo, New York, testified that he had arranged the recent breakfast at the white house attended by actors and actresses with the president's secretary, C. Bascom Slemp, and that he had paid expenses of the trip amounting to $1,297.

2—Henry L. Ramm, fireman of Lawrence, Mass., supporter of LaFollette, testified that he had been offered $22 a day by H. T. Drew, republican oragnizer, to make speeches and work among railroad men for the Coolidge-Dawes ticket.

3—H. L. Brunson, of the international machinists association, testified he had collected $120,000 for the LaFollette campaign from trades union members. He said 94 per cent of the amount had been in one dollar subscriptions.

5—Senator Caraway introduced two affidavits by P. T. Sapoch, Blacksburg, S. C., stating that he had paid $300 and $100 in two separate payments to representatives of the republican oragnization in South Carolina in order to be reappointed postmaster at Blacksburg and then was not re-appointed.

Gilson Gardner, a Washington newspaperman, followed Waldo on the stand. He testified he had written to friends and succeeded in obtaining contributions of $1,100 for the LaFollette campaign. He said he had been a friend of LaFollette since 1912.

Preferred LaFollette.

Early in September, Gardner said, he was approached by a representative of the McCutcheon-Gurston syndicate.

"He told me that his company was prepared to sell political publicity and would rather give it to LaFollette than the two other parties," Gardner said.

Gardner said that the man told him for $50,000, the syndicate would have "cracks and gags" favorable to LaFollette in vaudeville acts, would put on various "stunts" and give the independent candidate publicity in the movies.

The next witness called was Henry L. Ramm, a railroad fireman of Lawrence, Mass., a supporter of Senator LaFollette.

Ramm testified that he was approached by H. T. Drew, a republican organizer, who offered him $22 a day to make speeches and work among railroad men for the Coolidge-Dawes ticket.

"Did Drew know you were supporting LaFollette?" Walsh asked.

"Yes."

He said that Drew guaranteed him $1,000 for his work.

The witness added that a similar offer was made to E. O. Brown, a railroad engineer, who accepted it.

H. L. Brunson, of the international machinists association, testified that he had collected approximately $120,000 for the LaFollette campaign fund from trades union members, complete list of the contributors and the amounts being submitted by the witness.

Replying to Walsh, Brunson said that about 94 per cent of the fund came in $1 subscriptions.

Two affidavits by P. T. Sapoch, Blacksburg, S. C., were placed in the record by Senator Caraway. In the first Sapoch stated that in July, 1923, he had paid $300 to Mark Goodwin, republican county chairman for Cherokee county, S. C., for reappointment as postmaster.

"After getting my money they appointed some one else," said Sapoch.

In August, 1923, the other affidavit said Sapoch paid L. C. Waller, termed a representative of J. W. Tolbert, republican national committeeman for South Carolina, another $100.

Before the committe adjourned for lunch, subpoenaes were issued for A. J. Bartland, Seattle, Wash.; W. H. Steed, Chicago, and Otto Blandt, president of the Shop Crafts organization of the Northwestern railroad.

Walsh who asked for the subpoenaes, said the men were called to testify concerning alleged financial inducements offered labor leaders and working men to desert LaFollette.

President Coolidge's breakfast party at the white house for a group of actors and actresses was aired today when the senate campaign fund investigating committee resumed.

Rhinelander Waldo, of Garrison, N. Y., testified that he arranged for the party with C. Bascom Slemp, secretary to the president and said that he paid $1,297 for

TAPPAN SAYS TRUTH TOLD

COMPANY DID NOT MISREPRESENT IN SOLICITATION.

President and State Manager of Investor's Syndicate Give Rebuttal Testimony—Deny Misrepresentation.

J. E. Tappan, secretary-treasurer of the Investors' Syndicate of Minneapolis, State Manager Wroughton of Omaha, and C. C. Carlsen, president of the Lincoln Trust Co., took the witness stand Wednesday morning in the action against the governor seeking to enjoin him from interfering with the syndicate's business, and gave rebuttal testimony.

Mr. Tappan declared that in all the years the syndicate has operated in Nebraska, there has never been a single complaint against it from the department of trade and commerce, until after the suit was brought against the governor and Secretary Knudson.

Mr. Wroughton, in seeking to rebut the charges made by several savings certificate holders on the stand Tuesday afternoon, denied that he had ever misrepresented the savings proposition when he sold a certificate to Roy Bergher of Nebraska City. Mr. Wroughton also stated that three agens who were reported to be misrepresenting th eplan to prospects, were investigated and two of them were discharged. The third, he stated, was exonerated.

President Carlsen of the Lincoln Trust Co. stated that he had been a certificate holder in the syndicate for several years and that he has never had the slightest occasion to be dissatisfied.

The action now on trial before District Judge Shepherd, is the outgrowth of the refusal of the department of trade and commerce to renew the permit held by the syndicate, to continue business in the state. The syndicate is engaged in the sale of installment savings certificates on the monthly payment plan and the department of trade and commerce holds that the plan is unfair to the purchaser.

Immediately after the session Wednesday morning, the hearing was adjourned for one week in order that documentary evidence might be procured from the home office of the concern in Minneapolis. The final arguments on the case are scheduled for Thursday afternoon, November 6.

SHORTER SENTENCE FOR BOY BURGLARS

Judge Stewart Finds Wrong Section of Statute Was Used—Sentences Now One to Ten Years.

Harry Hagel, Earl Moore and Edward Wright three Chicago youths who ran amuck in Lincoln last February and were sentenced to serve from three to twenty years in the reformatory on a charge of burglary to which they pleaded guilty, had the fortune to have their sentences modified Wednesday morning. They are now sentenced to serve from one to ten years.

According to Judge Stewart, who set aside the original judgment and imposed the lesser terms, the boys were sentenced under the wrong section of the statute. There are two statutes on burglary. One provides a sentence of three to twenty years for the crime when murder or other violence is attempted in carrying out the burglary. The other section provides for a one to ten year sentence, the crime being defined as breaking and entering without the feature of violence.

According to their confession the boys entered the home of Muniza Girraffa and stole goods valued at $2. They also admitted having entered the homes of R. W. Danielson, Mrs. L. C. Harnley and George E. Condra. Recommendations from these parties, asking modification of the judgment were included in the pleadings. According to Judge Stewart the county attorney's office made a mistake and gave the wrong section of the statute to the court. The boys were originally sentenced by Judge Shepherd

HIGHT LOSES TWO POINTS

Ina Preacher Refused Request for Continuance and Change of Venue.

MOUNT VERNON, Ill., Oct. 29.—Lawrence Hight, deposed Ina minister who has confessed to the poisoning of his wife in a love conspiracy with Elsie Sweetin, today lost two points in his battle against the gallows.

Judge Kern in Jefferson county circuit court refused a request for a continuance in Hight's trial for sanity, and then overruled a motion for a change of venue.

The sanity trial, in County Judge John R. Piercy's court, will start this afternoon with selection of a jury. Hight will not plead to the first degree murder indictment against him until the sanity issue is determined.

Nelson Layman, High's attorney, in his motion for change of venue charged that a local newspaper had given such a positive verdict on the prisoner's sanity that an unprejudiced jury could not be obtained here.

HALL WRITES TO ADAM M'MULLEN

Asks Republican Candidate for Governor to Quit Talking as He Is Quoted of Talking About Bryan.

Secretary Hall of the code department of finance has addressed an open letter to Adam McMullen, republican candidate for governor. Mr. Hall as an appointee of Governor Bryan addresses his letter in care of the republican state committee. He takes exception to a quotation, attributed to Mr. McMullen, charging that Governor Bryan, by refusing four times to appear before the state senate committee which was investigating Bryan's charge of a deficit in the road construction funds,p forced the committee to work over an extended period and ran up a bill of expense.

Mr. Hall takes exception also to an alleged assertion that each time Governor Bryan was invited to come before the committee he sent a letter enlarging on the alleged deficit, and that the governor has absolutely refused to cooperate with any one with the exception of himself. Mr. McMullen is quoted as saying: "Let us confine politics to the period of campaigning and throw it aside when the campagin is over."

Mr. Hall wants this kind of talk stopped. He expresses the hope that Mr. McMullen "will do the justice of correcting your statements in accordance with the facts" and do it before election day.

Mr. Hall alleges in his open letter that the senate committee died a natural death when the state senate adjourned, that the committee is therefore self constituted and is without authority to exercise the right of sending for persons and papers.

"These men had no more right than any other citizen of the state to investigate Governor Bryan, or any of the state departments," says Mr. Hall. He contends that Governor Bryan did and always treated the members of that committee with the same courtesy and respect that he has treated all the citizens of Nebraska. "He has refused them nothing," he adds. "He sent the heads of departments in charge of the records to meet the committee with instructions to give them all possible information. He permitted these men access to the various departments and the records that they might find out and see for themselves. What more could any one do?"

Mr. Hall contends McKelvie was misinformed by George E. Johnson about road funds, but Bryan found out what McKelvie did not and what the republican legislature denied, and what it took the senate committee one and a half years to find out, namely, that there would be a deficit in the state aid road fund on June 30, 1923, of $447,000.

In regard to expense, Mr. Hall says: "Govrnor Bryan did not cause any of it and tried to prevent all of it."

RESOLUTION NOT NOTICED

Criticism of Student Council to Be Given No Official Recognition at University.

Resolutions passed by the student council of the University of Nebraska and published in The Daily Nebraskan Wednesday morning criticising the action of the university senate committee on student organizations in disciplining certain fraternities and sororities last week for breaking rules governing the holding of parties, will be given no official recognition by the university, it is stated. Members of the council who voted for the resolutions evidently had not read the constitution of the council, which in no way gives the council jurisdiction over such disciplinary matters.

Members of the faculty are expressing regret concerning the council's action, because it queers the members of an organization which the university authorities have been hoping might be developed into a real instrumentality for the expression of intelligent student opinion. They are smiling at the resolution, furthermore, which makes the unfounded allegation that the senate committee infringed upon the council's rights and at the same time declares that the committee's penalty was "inadequate and insufficient."

FATHER OF LOEB BURIED

Young Slayer's Family Decides Not to Allow Dickie to Attend Funeral.

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—Old family friends and business associates carried the remains of Albert H. Loeb to the last resting place today while "Dickie" Loeb, one of the killers of Bobby Franks, sat at his work bench in Joliet prison and fought hard to dam his emotions.

While Richard wanted to attend the funeral and the warden was agreeable, members of the family decided against it for fear of the crowds of curious. "Dickie" gave way to a burst of tears when word of the death was brought to him, but he preferred to stay at his bench rather than remain closeted with his grief in his cell.

Among the pallbearers for Albert Loeb was Julius Rosenwald, head of Sears Roebuck and company, of which Loeb was vice president.

JAPAN TO START REBUILDING.

TOKIO, (By Mail)—Reconstruction work in Tokio and Yokohoma, to start under government supervision this fall, is expected to boom wage scales of labor generally, but particularly the wages of the building trades of the empire. There are some 23,000 carpenters in Tokio at present and they are getting an average of $2 to $2.25 a day. Shortly after the earthquake a year ago, carpenters got as high as $3.50 a day. They poured into the capital from all parts of Japan, however, glutting the market and wages dropped.

ROCK ISLAND BRANCH LINE TRAIN DERAILED.

Late Tuesday Afternoon Accident on Fairbury-Horton Line in Which Train Rolled Into Ditch.

FAIRBURY, Neb., Oct. 29—Conductor John McCullough, one of the injured in the Pawnee wreck on the Rock Island late Tuesday afternoon is not in a serious condition. Mrs. Palmer of this city was more seriously hurt, but almost miraculously her baby was not injured.

Here is the list of injured.

Mrs. J. Palmer, wife of chief clerk to superintendent of Fairbury division head gashed and body bruised.
Charles Mahr, Beatrice Salvation Army worker bruised.
A. L. Austin, Sabetha, Kan. broken ribs.
Mrs. Ida M. Smith, Sabetha, Kan. injured about the shoulders and back.
E. A. Laplount, Beatrice Salvation army worker, back hurt.
John McCullough, Fairbury, conductor.

The cause of the accident has not been determined. It might have been a defective rail or a broken axle or wheel. All of the train excepting the engine left the track and the passenger cars rolled down the twelve foot embankment and were resting on their tops when they stopped rolling.

The train was the Horton passenger, No. 306, and had left Fairbury two hours before. The injured were taken in automobiles from the scene of the accident, six miles north of Pawnee to that city where they were cared for.

A report from a hospital at Pawnee City, at which the injured are being treated, stated that all of the victims were improving Wednesday morning and that serious results are not anticipated in any of the cases.

Mrs. J. Palmer, wife of the chief clerk in the Fairbury division superintendent's office, and John McCullough, conductor of the train, were the two suffering the greatest injuries. Mrs. Palmer suffered a gash on the head, a fractured arm and body bruises, but had recovered to the extent that it was expected to return her to her home at Fairbury Wednesday afternoon. Conductor McCullough has regained consciousness and suffers some pain from his injuries to his head, back and shoulders, but his condition is not deemed serious. The others are recovering rapidly.

TALKS ON LIFE IN CHINA

Wife of Diplomat to Display Costumes Worn by Princesses of Old Chinese Regime.

The Temple Sisterhood will present Madam Pearl V. Metzelthin, lecturer, Monday evening, November 10, in the auditorium of the new Jewish temple. Mrs. E. A. Schloss will sing Chinese Mother Goose rhymes. Both ladies will appear in exquisite Chinese robes which Madam Metzelthin brought with her from China, where she lived as a wife of a German diplomat. The rare and valuable costumes to be worn were presented to her by the imperial princesses of the old Chinese regime.

Madam Pearl V. Metzelthin was born in Baltimore. She left the United States when a girl for the purpose of studying medicine in Europe. When studying in the university in Berlin, she met her future husband, who at that time was a diplomat attached to the legation of Peking on leaving from his home country.

For over twelve years, Madam Metzelthin lived in China, having had access to the court and having lived thru the Chinese revolution with all its attendant changes in the life of that people. Here, by reason of her status as the wife of a duly accredited diplomat, she had an excellent opportunity to observe and learn all details of the life of this interesting old nation, and this opportunity was fully utilized. This period was punctured with interruptions used for extensive travel thru Siberia, Japan, the South Sea islands, Australia, India, Africa and the Holy Land.

CUPID AS CASHIER

A New Serial of a Wealthy Girl's Search for Real Love.

Synopsis.

Adele Adams finds herself left with a substantial fortune at the age of twenty-five. The men she knows mostly chaps in her set, do not appeal to her. She decides to try men out in other walks of life, takes a position as a Wall street stenographer and meets Roger Barnett, a clerk employed in the same firm. Adele lives five and one-half days a week in a furnished room as other working girls live, but spends her week-ends at her Long Island estate where her maiden aunt, Miss Adams keeps house for her. Here she enjoys her motor car and fancy breed of dogs. She does not tell Barnett that she is rich.

They Discuss the Future.

Adele knew there was something wrong the moment she saw him.

"Roger you're awfully pale! What's happened?" she asked.

He lighted a cigaret and looked dreamily about the dingy little boarding house parlor before he answered.

"You were so gay at the office all afternoon," she reminded him. "Tell me what the trouble is."

"Mother's gone off on an extended visit to her aunt's," he said at last, with just the slightest suspicion of a twist to his lip.

"Because you refused to give me up?"

"Because I came out and asserted my rights," he corrected. "I'm not worried, but I was a little surprised. We had quite a talk this morning and she threatened to leave it I thought seriously about any girl. I let her blow off, but tonight I found her gone. It will do her good. This would have to happen some time and I dare say she'll be back by the end of the week. She doesn't like her aunt and never got on with her."

"I'm awfully, awfully sorry," said Adele, more to herself than to Roger. "I can't bear to think of that little mother being separated from you. She dotes on you, Roger, you are her son, moon and stars. You can't discipline her that way. You'll have to write to her and tell her you're not going to see me any more."

"But I am."

"Not if it is going to separate you from your mother. She just didn't like me. I could tell the moment we met. She might like some other girl and I'm not going to come between you."

"It would be just the same story with any girl. She liked you as much as she would any feminine friend, but she's made up her mind I'm not to marry until forty or so—if ever." He colored at his break. He had not meant to say "marry," but Adele did not seem to notice this. She was evidently such a sensible girl that she took it for granted his mother thought of marriage even when she had only had tea at his home once. Mothers of only sons always thought of marriage at the mere mention of a girl's name.

"She will worry about our meeting at the office, too," Adele reflected. "You know my position is not a lucrative one and I don't especially care for the president. I have been thinking of changing, and if you write and tell your mother I have resigned and you are no longer calling upon me I think you will be doing the biggest thing in your life."

He was looking off into space. "Then our friendship has meant nothing to you?" he asked. "You can go away and forget it as easily as that?"

"I wouldn't think of coming between a man and his mother," she said. "We might write, you know, and in time your mother may change her point of view. But I want you to tell her I am going to give up my place and that you are not coming to see me."

POULSOM IS FOUND GUILTY

Jury Finds He Received Stolen Cars and Sold Them to Unsuspecting Purchasers.

NEBRASKA CITY, Oct. 29.—In the hardest fought criminal prosecution on the present district court docket here, Thomas Poulsom, of this city, was found guilty of receiving stolen automobiles by a jury which announced its verdict after a deliberation of one hour. The court room was crowded for the climax of a case whose intricate facts involved innocent purchasers for value in both Kansas and Nebraska.

Four automobiles sold by Poulsom to men in this community were alleged to have been stolen from four Kansas men, who attended the hearing. The "Claude Williams" of whom Poulsom said he bought two of the cars, was Charles M. Snyder, now serving time in the penitentiary for theft of the Fred Hardy car in Lincoln, according to testimony on the witness stand by Clarence Lockwood, of Topeka, alleged "Master mind" of the supposed ring and brought here from Lincoln, where he will be tried for complicity in the case.

Lockwood testified that he and Snyder brought three new automobiles to this city and placed them in Poulsom's barn, the defendant paying them $350 for two of the cars, the other being taken to Lincoln. Snyder corroborated Lockwood's testimony and said he received $175 of the Poulsom money as his share. He said he used the name, "Claude Williams," as a blind.

Poulsom denied having any transactions with Lockwood and said he had seen him but once before. Poulsom has a young wife and one small child. His attorneys will ask for a new trial. He had been out on bond since his arrest.

BATH A WEEK IS AVERAGE.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 29.—The average American child takes a bath once a week, brushes his teeth five times a week, goes to the dentist once every two years, goes to bed at 8:56 o'clock every night, gets up at 7:05, drinks one and two-fifths glasses of milk daily, eats substantial breakfasts and plays out of doors after school six days a week. Such a child was pictured here by Dr. George T. Palmer, director of the research bureau of the American Child Health association, who assisted in making a health survey of 35,000 fifth grade school children. LATE NEWS OF YESTERDAY

AUTO KILLS DR. BULLOCK

CAR DRIVEN BY MRS. LLOYD ELLIOTT STRUCK HIM.

Head of Vine Congregational Church Meets Instant Death at Intersection Tuesday Evening.

Rev. Motier A. Bullock, seventy-three years old, 2420 R street, who for twenty-five years has been pastor of the Vine Congregational church, 500 North Twenty-fifth, was killed instantly at 5:50 p. m. Tuesday when struck by an auto driven by Mrs. Lloyd F. Elliott, 2915 R, at the intersection of Twenty-seventh and R streets. Rev. Mr. Bullock had just purchased some groceries at the Scofield store at the southeast corner of the intersection and was going north across R street when struck. He was carrying a bottle of milk in his hand.

Mrs. Elliott was driving west in a Hudson sedan. Rev. Mr. Bullock sustained a badly fractured skull and it is believed that he met instant death. Dr. W. H. Slattery and Dr. D. J. Bowman were summoned and pronounced the victim dead. Splain & Schnell's ambulance arrived shortly after the tragedy and took the remains to Roberts' chapel. Rev. Mr. Bullock was dragged for about thirty feet after being struck. Mrs. Elliott fainted when the car struck the minister. Her son, Lloyd, jr., shut off the ignition and the machine was stopped when it had gone about half a block after striking the victim.

"The first intimation that I had of the accident was when I heard the crash of a milk bottle that he was carrying," said Mrs. Hugh B. Copsey, 2611 R, who was nearby and witnessed the tragedy. "I turned around and saw that the car, which had come around the corner of the Grace Methodist church from a jog in R street, had struck Rev. Mr. Bullock. He was nearly ready to step upon the curb on the north side of the street when hit. The auto was against him when I looked. Then it pushed him underneath and he seemed to turn and a wheel passed over his head and another over his feet. His head was toward the south, I believe. The body was carried about thirty feet from the point where Rev. Mr. Bullock was struck.

Occurred Early in Evening.

"The car was not going fast when it hit him, in fact, I believe that it was nearly stopped. It came to a complete stop after it had gone a half block. The accident happened at about 5:50 p. m. and there were no lights on the auto and no street lights were on."

According to Motorcycle Officer Clyde Wait, of the police department, Rev. Mr. Bullock was near the northwest corner of the intersection when hit. He said that Mrs. Elliott was going west and seeing Rev. Mr. Bullock slowed down her auto. Officer Wait said that he did not think that Mrs. Elliott could have been going fast because of the corner and the jog in the street.

Lloyd F. Elliott, jr., sixteen years old, who was with his mother when the accident occurred, tells the following story of the tragedy:

"Mother and I were going down R street toward the west. We were going very slowly, about four miles per hour, for I looked at the speedometer as we slowed down at the crossing. She was driving. The Rev. Mr. Bullock was crossing diagonally, and was still in the middle of the intersection. A girl who was crossing straight to the north was nearly across the street. She stepped up on the curb.

"Dr. Bullock hesitated as we came along, and then stepped in front of the car. The radiator hit him. and knocked him down. The wheels did not pass over him, I believe. Then mother fainted, and I stopped the car by turning off the ignition and putting on the brake. The car stopped within about ten feet. I got out, told the people who I was, and went downtown to get my father. We went back to the scene of the accident, talked to the officer, and then went home."

Motier Acklin Bullock was born in Lapeer county, Michigan, April 15, 1851. His ancestors settled in Massachusetts in 1664. He received his college degree at Olivet college, Michigan, in 1876 and was given his masters degree three years later. He received the degree of Doctor of Divinity in 1891. He studied theology with Zachary Eddy in Detroit in 1877.

September 19, that year, he married Catherine Tunison of Hadley, Lapeer county. On October 19, 1876, he was ordained to the Congregational ministry. He served as pastor at Oakwood, Mich. from 1876 to 1878, and at Metamora from 1878 to 1883. After spending two years at Silverton, Colo., and three years at South Haven, Mich., he was called to the ministry of the important Iowa City congregation in 1888. In 1899 he received a call to the Vine church of Lincoln, in which he served as pastor until the day of his death.

Dr. Bullock was a well known and much beloved man in his denomination. He was a delegate to the national council of Congregational churches in 1879, 1885, 1904, 1917, 1919. Since 1894 he was a corporate member of the A. B. C. F. M. In 1898 he was moderator of the Congregational association of Iowa. For many years he was a member of the Iowa missionary society, and served as member of the board of directors in Nebraska for more than twenty years. Nearly all of this time he was president of this board. He served as moderator of the Nebraska Congregational conference in 1910 and was superintendent of the Nebraska prison association for fourteen years. He wrote extensively for church publications and for many years conducted a column in the Monday Journal devoted to the affairs of Congregationalism in Nebraska. He leaves a widow and a son. Professor Theodore T. Bullock, 315 North Thirty-fifth, a member of the faculty of the state university.

Dr. Bullock was the dean of his profession in Lincoln. Seventy-three years of age, with a quarter of a century of service to a single church to his credit, he was the oldest pastor probably in years and certainly in continuous service in the city. When he came to Lincoln in 1899, Vine Congregational church worshipped in a small wooden building at Twenty-fifth and Vine streets. After a few years a new church was built under his inspiration at Twenty-fifth and S streets. This was dedicated in 1906. It has served a large district in the northeastern part of the city, and has given particular attention to the needs of the students on the city campus and on the farm.

Dr. Bullock, because of his long service and wide acquaintance, was called upon for a large amount of service throuout the city. This was especially the case during the summer seasons. Only a few times in the last twenty-five years has he been out of the city in the regular vacation time. This made him a pastor for many congregations for weeks at a time, a service that gave him a wide acquaintance and a great circle of friends.

DISTRICT TEACHERS COMING TO LINCOLN

PEOPLE YOU KNOW.

Mrs. Adam Gartner, jr., was hostess at a towel shower Tuesday evening at her home, honoring Miss Anna Marie Breiner, who will be a November bride. Halloween suggestions formed the decorations thru the house, and cornstalks and pumpkins formed an altar for a mock wedding which was part of the entertainment of the evening. To find her gifts Miss Breiner was directed to various places about the house, where there were notes sending her on to other spots, until the directions led her to the altar where the gifts were concealed beneath the corn and pumpkins. The hostess served a three-course luncheon late in the evening, following Halloween and bridal games. Thirty guests were present.

Miss Martha Meyer entertained the members of the Protheon club of the St. Paul Evangelical church at a Halloween masquerade party Tuesday evening at the home of her brother, Karl Meyer, and Mrs. Meyer. Twenty-five guests were present, and spent the evening with games and other informal entertainment.

The Tuesday Night club gave one of its series of informal dances at the Rosewilde Tuesday evening. Aside from the club members, Mrs. D. W. Cook, jr., and Mrs. V. E. Drummond, of Beatrice, were present. Mrs. F. B. Sidles was chairman of the committee in charge of the party, and was assisted by Mrs. W. J. Assenmacher, Mrs. E. C. Colhapp and Mrs. R. B. Kile.

Mrs. Heath Nuckolls, of Nebraska City, is in Lincoln visiting at the home of State Auditor Marsh. She is eighty-five years of age but was able to make the journey from Nebraska City to Lincoln in an automobile last Sunday. Her husband was one of the early residents of Nebraska City. The county of Nuckolls was named after him.

Sets New Crop Record.

BRIDGEPORT, Neb., Oct. 28.—A. E. Morgan, farmer living near Dalton, has recently completed the harvest of a field of 60 acres of corn that is thought to have set a new yield record for the North Platte valley. A 20 acre section of the field is claimed to have produced 91 1-2 bushels per acre. Other parts of the field averaged 40 bushels per acre. Only a small portion of the field produced soft corn. The crop will be fed to cattle on the Morgan farm.

TESTIFY AGAINST MINNEAPOLIS FIRM

Fourteen Take Stand in Trial and Contracts Made By Syndicate Are Alleged to Be Unfair.

Fourteen witnesses, the majority of whom had purchased instalment savings certificates in the Investor's Syndicate of Minneapolis and who had become dissatisfied with their bargain, were called to the witness stand in Judge Shepherd's court Tuesday in the course of the trial prosecuted against the governor and K. C. Knudson by the syndicate in an effort to have their permit to transact business in this state, renewed.

A. L. DeLong, a county agricultural agent, stated on the stand that he had purchased one of the instalment savings certificates and kept up the payments for seven years and seven months. He declared that when he was forced to surrender his certificate by financial difficulties, he received a little over $600, or approximately $50 more than he had paid in. The $50 represented the interest on his money for that period.

Other witnesses called testified that they had made the first payments on the savings certificates, believing that they had purchased something akin to building and loan and when their certificates arrived, they looked them over, sent them back and stopped their payments, receiving nothing of what they had paid in.

A deposition given by A. M. Holly, of Petersburg, was read on the stand. Mr. Holly declared that a Mr. Jones, a representative of the Investor's Syndicate, called on him and stated that he had an investment certificate to sell. He represented the certificate to be like building and loan payments. Mr. Holly declared that he paid in $210 on his certificate and when he surrendered his certificate he received but $141 and "....was tickled to death to get out with that...."

The Investor's Syndicate in their suit seeking an injunction preventing the governor and the department of trade and commerce from interfering with their business, claim that they were admitted to do business in Nebraska during the Neville administration. They claim that unless the permit that was denied in January, 1924, is renewed by the department, they will lose about $5,000,000 worth of contracts and a sales force of seventy-five agents which it has cost a great deal to build up.

The department of trade and commerce refusing to renew the permit, claim that the contracts which the syndicate has been making are unfair to the purchaser, that the purchaser does not get the full return of his money unless he keeps up the payments for a number of years and that he gets no return unless he has carried it for at least two years. In the hearing Tuesday forenoon, representatives from various building and loan companies were called to the stand for the purpose of comparing the fairness of their contracts with the contracts of the syndicate. In every instance the building and loan companies stated that they refunded every dollar of the principal invested plus all accrued interest.

FOUR MILLIONS OFFERED

Prior Preference Stock of Continental Gas & Electric Corporation on Market.

A four million dollar offering of stock in the Continental Gas & Electric corporation, which now owns the gas and traction companies in Lincoln, is being made in New York. The price fixed for 7 per cent prior preference stock is $92 a share, which yields 7.61 per cent on the investment. The United Light and Power company recently contracted to purchase over 75 per cent of the Continental common stock, and when the merger of stock is complete the stock will have a market value in excess of $33,000,000.

The gross earnings of the United are thirty-four millions a year, of which the Continental contributes twenty-one millions. After payment of operation expenses, maintenance and taxes the Continental and its subsidiaries had over nine millions left for interest and dividends. In four years the gross earnings of the company almost doubled.

Cash dividends have been paid on the preferred stocks of the Continental Gas & Electric corporation uninterruptedly since organization in 1912.

MERE MENTION.

Elizabeth Milks was granted a decree of divorce from Clyde Milks by District Judge Frost Tuesday afternoon on grounds of extreme cruelty and non-support. Her maiden name, Elizabeth Poulston, was restored. There are no children.

Carrie E. Weideman was granted a decree of divorce from Charles E. Weideman by District Judge Frost Tuesday afternoon on grounds of extreme cruelty. The couple were married in Wilber, October 31, 1916. A property settlement was effected outside of court. Mrs Weideman's maiden name, Carrie Berry, was restored.

Guy W. Offill filed suit for $3,030 damages resulting from an alleged assault made by Hiram F. Cornell, May 21, 1924. He asks $30 more which he claims be expended in medical treatment necessitated by the assault.

THOMAS EXPLAINS PLIGHT OF FARMER

In an address before over six hundred people at the city auditorium Tuesday evening, J. J. Thomas, candidate for United States senator, stressed the need of farm legislation on the grounds that Nebraska is essentially an agricultural state. He devoted the main part of his talk to the issues as related to farm problems. He maintained that it is upon the masses that a nation is built and that it is the first duty of a statesman to take care of the masses. Swollen fortunes, he said, are a menace to society and an ideal nation would be one in which the wealth was evenly divided. The duty to the commonwealth has been overlooked by the present administration, he said.

"The farmers of the nation, scattered over the forty-eight states of the union, have carelessly and for lack of union allowed business interests to gain control," said Mr. Thomas. "The real issue of the campaign is between the industries of the east and the agricultural interests of the west. We all know that agriculture is on the verge of bankruptcy. As long as the farmer has a surplus he must meet the competition of the world. He buys in a market controlled against him and sells in a market controlled against him,

"Agriculture has never received a square deal," said Mr. Thomas. "For a short time during the war, prices were high. Then in the process of getting back to normalcy, they went down to one-half and one-third of their pre-war level while the manufactured product remained suspended in midair.

Mr. Thomas blamed the high tariff for the unfair conditions, and gave figures to show that on a dollars worth of woolen goods, the labor amounts to 16 cents and the tariff to 68 cents. In another example he cited the beet industry of the Platte valley and explained that while the beet growers are barely able to pay expenses, the mills are paying big dividends.

Dr. Fredrick Eiche introduced Mr. Thomas after having been presented as a republican who was giving his support to Thomas for senator. In introducing Mr. Thomas he said; "I am not here as a political speaker nor am I here in a partisan spirit. But I am here as a republican who is proud to do honor to J. J. TWO CARS A DAY REBUILT

BURLINGTON REPAIR TRACKS GIVE WORK TO MANY.

Progressive System of Rebuilding Now Employed Shows Economy in Reducing Cost of Repairs.

A force of about forty men are adding an average of two cars a day to serviceable equipment of the Burlington railroad at Lincoln. Old cars are torn down and rebuilt and turned into traffic use practically as good as new cars.

The repair track has been a busy place during the past two or three months. The grain traffic has been heavy, the demand for grain cars has been about all the railroad could supply, and every car possible to condition for that use has been repaired. The grain car demand is now looking just a little bit but the demand for sugar cars has shown up and the repair men are now getting them ready to haul away the Nebraska, Wyoming and Colorado sugar crop.

The rebuilding of freight cars is done on the "progressive" system. An inspector goes over each one and marks just how much "stripping" or wrecking is to be done. A gang of "strippers" take the car and do what the inspector has ordered. The car is moved on and a part of the work of rebuilding is done by another gang. It is again moved to other workmen and on until completed. In this way the number of man hours per car has been much reduced.

It is understood the company is doing a lot of this work at other places and that accretions to serviceable rolling stock total a considerable number of cars every month.

WANTS CURRENT FOR HOME

Utility Won't Supply It Because Wiring Not Done According to Ordinance.

Whether a public utility supplying light to a householder can shut it off because the residence has not been wired in accordance with the safety rules made by insurance companies is the question involved in the appeal of W. C. Sample filed in supreme court Wednesday.

Sample lives at Seventy-third and Douglas streets in Omaha, and not long ago built himself a new house. When it was finished he asked the Nebraska Power company to furnish him with electric current. It did so, and later, claiming the house failed to meet the requirements of the Omaha wiring code, current was shut off. Sample brought suit to compel service. The lower court decided against him.

The power company said that it has made it a rule to furnish no current to any householder who has not obeyed the law with respect to the way the interior wiring of a house or other building is done and has applied this to the services installed outside the city limits. In this case the first survey showed that the wiring was not properly done, but that on the promise of Sample to have it corrected within thirty days, current was supplied. When he failed to keep his promise it was cut off.

ANDREWS WILL GO OVER.

Frank P. Corrick, state director of Coolidge and Dawes clubs, returned Wednesday from a trip to Hastings where he studied the political outlook in that section. He expressed the opinion that W. E. Andrews, republican nominee for congress, will be elected.

The Bondage.

The past chapters: White Fang, son of the she-wolf of the Northland pack learns his first lesson in the wild as he takes the meat trail around his mother's lair; attack only the weaker. Captured by Indians while on one of his daily foragings, he surrenders when his mother, coming to his rescue, gives up as the man-animals recognize her as an escapted sled-dog and call her name, Kiche. White Fang, taken to the camp, meets his first dogs; he finds them all anxious to fight. Lip-lip, an Indian dog, chooses White Fang for his special torment and the cub begins to add to his store of knowledge some of the finer points of the fight game. Kiche, at last free as domesticated, is then able to come to his aid in emergencies.

Later on that day, Kiche and White Fang strayed into the edge of the woods next to the camp. He had led his mother there, step by step, and now, when she stopped, he tried to enveigle her farther. The stream, the lair, and the quiet woods were calling to him, and he wanted her to come. He ran on a few steps, stopped, and looked back. She had not moved. He whined pleadingly, and scurried playfully in and out of the underbrush. He ran back to her, licked her face, and ran on again. And still she did not move. He stopped and regarded her, all of an intentness and eagerness, physically expressed, that slowly faded out of him as she turned her head and gazed back at the camp.

There was something calling to him out there in the open. His mother heard it, too. But she heard also that other and louder call, the call of the fire and of man—the call which it has been given alone of all animals to the wolf to answer to the wolf and the wild dog, who are brothers.

Kiche turned and slowly trotted back toward camp. Stronger than the physical restraint of the stick was the clutch of the camp upon her. Unseen and occultly, the gods still gripped with their power and would not let her go. White Fang sat down in the shadow of a birch and whimpered softly. There was a strong smell of pine, and subtle woods fragrances filled the air, reminding him of his old life of freedom before the days of his bondage. But he was still only a part grown puppy, and stronger than the call either of man or of the wild was the call of his mother. All the hours of his short life he had depended upon her. The time was yet to come for independence. So he arose and trotted forlornly back to camp, pausing once, and twice, to sit down and whimper and to listen to the call that still sounded in the depths of the forest.

In the wild the time of a mother with her young is short; but under the dominion of man it is sometimes even shorter. Thus it was with White Fang. Gray Beaver was in the debt of Three Eagles. Three Eagles was going on a trip up the Mackenzie to the Great Slave Lake. A strip of scarlet cloth, a bearskin, twenty cartridges and Kiche, went to pay the debt. White Fang saw his mother taken aboard Three Eagle's canoe, and tried to follow her. A blow from Three Eagles knocked him backward to the land. The canoe shoved off. He sprang into the water and swam after it, deaf to the sharp cries of Gray Beaver to return. Even a man-animal, a god, White Fang ignored, such was the terror he was in of losing his mother.

But gods are accustomed to being obeyed, and Gray Beaver wrathfully launched a canoe in pursuit. When he overtook White Fang, he reached down and by the nape of the neck lifted him clear of the water. He did not deposit him at once in the bottom of the canoe. Holding him suspended with one hand, with the other he proceeded to give him a beating. And it was a beating. His hand was heavy. Every blow was shrewd to hurt; and he delivered a multitude of blows.

Impelled by the blows that rained upon him, now from this side, now from that, White Fang swung back and forth like an erratic and jerky pendulum. Varying were the emotions that surged thru him. At first, he had known surprise. Then came a momentary fear, when he yelped several times to the impact of the hand. But this was quickly followed by anger. His free nature asserted itself, and he showed his teeth and snarled fearlessly in the face of the wrathful god. But this served to make the god more wrathful. The blows came faster, heavier, more shrewd to hurt.

Gray Beaver continued to beat. White Fang continued to snarl. But this could not last forever. One or the other must give over, and that one was White Fang. Fear surged thru him again. For the first time he was being really man handled. The occasional blows of sticks and stones he had previously experienced were as caresses compared with this. He broke down and began to cry and yelp. For a time each blow brought a yelp from him; but fear passed into terror, until finally his yelps were voiced in unbroken succession, unconnected with the rhythm of the punishment.

At last Gray Beaver withheld his hand. White Fang, hanging limply, continued to cry. This seemed to satisfy his master, who flung him down roughly in the bottom of the canoe. In the meantime the canoe had drifted down the stream. Gray Beaver picked up the paddle. White Fang was in his way. He spurned him savagely with his foot. In that moment White Fang's free nature flashed forth again, and he sank his teeth into the moccasined foot.

The beating that had gone before was as nothing compared with the beating he now received. Gray Beaver's wrath was terrible; likewise was White Fang's fright. Not only the hand, but the hard wooden paddle was used upon him; and he was bruised and sore in all his small body when he was again flung down in the canoe. Again, and this time with purpose, did Gray Beaver kick him. White Fang did not repeat his attack on the foot. He had learned another lesson of his bondage. Never, no matter what the circumstance, must he dare to bite the god who was lord and master over him; the body of the lord and master was sacred, not to be defiled by the teeth of such as he. That was evidently the crime of crimes, the one offense there was no condoning nor overlooking.

When the canoe touched the shore, White Fang lay whimpering and motionless, waiting the will of Gray Beaver. It was Gray Beaver's will that he should go ashore, for ashore he was flung, striking heavily on his side and hurting his bruises afresh. He crawled trembling to his feet and stood whimpering. Lip-lip, who had watched the whole proceeding from the bank, now rushed upon him, knocking him over and sinking his teeth into him. White Fang was too helpless to defend himself, and it would have gone hard with him had not Gray Beaver's foot shot out, lifting Lip-lip into the air with its violence so that he smashed down to earth a dozen feet away. This was the man-animal's justice; and even then, in his own pitiable plight, White Fang experienced a little grateful thrill. At Gray Beaver's heels he limped obediently thru the village to the tepee. And so it came that White Fang learned that the right to punish was something the gods reserved for themselves and denied to the lesser creatures under them.

That night, when all was still, White Fang remembered his mother and sorrowed for her. He sorrowed too loudly and woke up Gray Beaver, who beat him. After that he mourned gently when the gods were around. But sometimes, straying off to the edge of the woods by himself, he gave vent to his grief, and cried it out with loud whimperings and wailings.

It was during this period that he might have hearkened to the memories of the lair and the stream and run back to the wild. But the memory of his mother held him. As the hunting man-animals went out and came back, so she would come back to the village sometime. So he remained in his bondage waiting for her.

But it was not althogether an unhappy bondage. There was much to interest him. Something was always happening. There was no end to the strange things these gods did, and he was always curious to see. Besides, he was learning how to get along with Gray Beaver. Obedience, rigid, undeviating obedience, was what was exacted of him; and in return he escaped beatings and his existence was tolerated.

Nay, Gray Beaver himself sometimes tossed him a piece of meat, and defended him against the other dogs in the eating of it. And such a piece of meat was of value. It was worth more, in some strange way, than a dozen pieces of meat from the hand of a squaw. Gray Beaver never petted nor caressed. Perhaps it was the weight of his hand, perhaps his justice, perhaps the sheer power of him, and perhaps it was all these things that influenced White Fang; for a certain tie of attachment was forming between him and his surly lord.

Insidiously, and by remote ways, as well as by the power of stick and stone and clout of hand, were the shackles of White Fang's bondage being riveted upon him. The qualities in his kind that in the beginning made it possible for them to come in to the fires of men, were developing in him, and the camp life, replete with misery as it was, was secretly endearing itself to him all the time. But White Fang was unaware of it. He knew only grief for the loss of Kiche, hope for her return, and a hungry yearning for the free life that had been his.

INJURIES ARE NOT SERIOUS

Arthur Pillard Was Hurt When Bicycle Hit by Auto Tuesday.

Arthur Pillard, a small boy who lives at Lakeview, sustained no serious injuries when the bicycle he was riding was struck by a car driven by W. H. Gerton, 1924 W. University Place, near the Burlington tracks on West P street Tuesday afternoon. He was taken to the Lincoln sanitarium where he was attended by Dr. Olney who stated Wednesday noon that the boy suffered only minor injuries and would be released from the hospital sometime in the afternoon.

Mr. Gerton stated that young Pillard turned his bicycle in front of the auto and altho, in order to avoid the collision, he pulled the car into the ditch, the fender hit the wheel smashing it and throwing the boy into the road. He was not traveling at a great rate of speed. The boy sustained a gash on the forehead and body bruises.

STARTS AN ARGUMENT.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—The good ship "Los Angeles," which crossed the Atlantic by air under the name ZR3, has started an argument among aviation officers here over the military value of dirigibles. Altho the Los Angeles, under the terms of the Versailles treaty, can not be used for war purposes, her remarkable maiden voyage has intensified the demand for another military ship of her type for use with the Shenandoah in case of war. Many flying officers, however, question the military worth of rigid lighter-than-air craft. While granting the dirigible's value as a trans-oceanic commercial carrier of the future, they maintain that the huge exposed bulk of such ships and their slower speed rate than airplanes would leave them defenseless against bombing planes. But England is going to build two dirigibles twice the size of the Los Angeles and Shenandoah, and at any time can re-commission her three derelict Zeppelins, is the answer of officers anxious to maintain in the air the same 5-5-3 ratio for seacraft established by the Washington Arms conference.

Chlorine Gas Heals Sore Gums

The reports of the U. S. army surgeons on the curative value of Chlorine Gas in certain diseases read like modern miracles. Out of over a thousand mixed cases 70% cures are reported.

It is gratifying to find that Chlorine Gas is now available to any person in his home. The gas is combined with other valuable healing agents in a liquid form and has been named Jo-Vex.

Most important of all, it has been found that this new product, Jo-Vex, stops the treacherous gum disease known as Pyorrhea which is usually accompanied by sore and bleeding gums, loose teeth, etc., and which results in broken health and false teeth unless mastered.

Druggists are ordering Jo-Vex for local distribution. Harley Drug Co. has just received fresh shipments direct from the laboratory. If your druggist's supply is exhausted The Jo-Vex Chemical Co., Akron, Ohio, will send a full size bottle with complete instructions upon receipt of $1.00.—Advertisement.

New Type of Car Stirs Automobile World

It is an open car one moment and 30 seconds later same car is entirely enclosed. Studebaker Duplex ends need of hunting for side curtains in the dark and storm

A new type of car has stirred the automobile world as has nothing since the abandonment of the "buggy" style of body building.

It is the Studebaker Duplex, so called to indicate that it is an open car one moment, and 30 seconds later it is an enclosed car.

Like all great advances in the industrial arts, it is "so simple in operation, it is a wonder it wasn't thought of before" — — —

Particularly since its need has been growing, year by year, ever since automobiles were made.

Many people all of the time, and most people part of the time, want an open car—to bring to their riding the fresh crispness of the country air, and a free and untrammeled association with the great outdoors.

Yet for these same people, the snug comfort of the closed car, shutting out the storm and the wind and the cold, has been at times a necessity.

Two cars in one

The Studebaker Duplex is both cars in one. Just pull down the roller enclosures concealed in the roof of the car. In 30 seconds the open car has been made an enclosed car.

No hurried efforts to put up curtains; no hunting for the right one while the storm beats in; no mixing them up in the dark; no exposure through holes torn in them while trying to obtain, for the emergency, the protection given by a closed car — — —

Just pull down the roller enclosures giving instant enclosed car effect.

The body is built substantially—sides, corners and roof frame are of steel. The roof has curved steel sides and back; hardwood front. Steel, U-shaped cross beams, six of them, support the waterproofed, duplex fabric top and its linings. Here is permanent beauty, no sagging tops.

But Studebaker, on which the whole vehicle-using world has come to depend for reliability, would not rest on only one real contribution to the value given the public.

It must give all that engineering ability could devise.

Striking new features

So there are offered three distinct models of cars, to meet each of the three fields of demand—the Standard Six, with 113-inch wheelbase and 50 horsepower motor; the Special Six, with 120-inch wheelbase and 65 horsepower motor; the Big Six, most magnificent and luxurious of its products, with 127-inch wheelbase and 75 horsepower motor.

Duplex bodies are available on each line. In addition, closed models have workmanship and materials and beauty of line so far above the price class of the car, they must be seen to be appreciated.

Of scarcely less importance than the Duplex feature are other improvements such as, automatic ignition system, lighting control on the steering wheel, new location of emergency brake, improved one-piece windshield and many others.

The body lines, steering mechanism, and even the fenders of the new Studebaker were designed especially for genuine balloon tires. Thus the body lines harmonize with grace and beauty hitherto unattained, even by Studebaker.

Come in and see these new cars.

DORIS DISCOVERS A BEAUTIFUL FLOWER.

DORIS let out a happy little squeak when she saw the lovely pink blossoms nodding over among the cattails in the marshes.

"Oh, you pretty things! I'd like to have some of your pretty flowers only I can't reach you."

Doris looked around to try to find something to reach the blossoms with, when she discovered two bright black eyes laughing at her from behind a bush. "Happy Giggles! You scamp!" she cried, pulling the wee make-believe elfin out from his hiding place. "You dear! Can't you help me get one of those lovely pink blossoms?"

"Such a silly question," laughed Happy Giggles merrily. "You know that's the very reason I'm here, to help you. I just heard Mrs. Marsh Rose Mallow wishing the other day that someone would happen by and admire her pretty flowers."

Happy Giggles took Doris by the hand and they went over that swamp as if it were a polished floor without even so much as soiling their shoes.

"Now your wish is fulfilled, Mrs. Marsh Rose Mallow," Happy Giggles laughed. "Doris has found you and thinks your pretty pink blossoms just the thing for her garden."

"Isn't that too lovely for words!"

"Your Wish Is Fulfilled."

Mrs. Marsh Rose Mallow exclaimed. "I have just been wishing someone would take me out of this marshland. I love it here, but I'm quite sure if folks knew we were useful as well as ornamental they'd put us out in their gardens more."

"But would you grow in a cultivated garden?" Doris asked, rubbing her fingers over the velvety, pink petals. "I'd love to have you just for your beauty. But may I ask what else folks can use you for?"

"You certainly may," laughed Mrs. Marsh Rose Mallow. "But I'm sure you wouldn't want to use me for that.

"In China, the married women use my juices to blacken their teeth."

"Oh, dear me!" laughed Doris. "I'm afraid I wouldn't spoil your pretty blossoms for that."

"And then in the West Indies, they use our juices for blacking their shoes," chuckled Mrs. Marsh Rose Mallow. "Maybe that would suit you better."

"No, I don't think I could bear to crush your pretty petals to make blacking for my shoes," Doris laughed. "But I should think a hedge of Rose Mallows would just be beautiful. Let's take Mrs. Marsh Rose Mallow home with us, Happy Giggles!"

"Nothing could suit me better," and Mrs. Marsh Rose Mallow swayed back and forth in the breeze, too happy for words.

Happy Giggles with his magic power gathered Mrs. Marsh Rose Mallow out of the marshy soil and together he and Doris carried her back to Doris' garden and planted her right near the back gate.

The next thing Doris knew, Mrs. Marsh Rose Mallow and Mrs. Hollyhock discovered they were cousins and they entertained Doris all afternoon with their merry chatter and if you should happen to pass Doris's house some time, if you peek over the back fence, you'll see Mrs. Marsh Rose Mallow nodding in the sunshine right next to Mrs. Hollyhock and a happier crowd of flowers can't be found.

A WIFE'S CONFESSIONAL

Revelations of a Wife

How Mother Graham Rushed to Madge's Rescue.

THERE was but one thought in my mind as Leila uttered the significant words, "after Ede comes back to Marvin so soon and alone." I must not permit my secret dismay to betray itself to either of them. Therefore I constrained my voice to casualness.

"Oh, you are not going to stay down there, Edith?" I asked. "Where did I pick up the notion that you were not coming back until Spring?"

"It was lying around loose almost anywhere until a few days ago," Edith Fairfax laughed, and I wondered if it was my imagination that read a strained note in the laughter. "But I've changed my mind only within the last few days. I'm going down with Leila, of course, but I'm only going to stay until the party is safely over"—this with a tender, merry glance at her sister, flushing and paling under the loving raillery.

Edith's Explanation.

"I know I'm selfish," Leila said, and in her voice was all the wistfulness of the indulged child who suddenly sees a separation from the person upon whom she most depends, "but I just couldn't live if Ede wasn't with me until——"

"Well, you may go on living," Edith Fairfax laughed, and in her face was mirrored the tender beautiful protection which has enfolded her delicate younger sister during her entire life. "You know very well I won't leave you a minute until you're perfectly safe. Then Aunt Dora and Mother Graham can boss and pet you to their hearts' content, and you won't need me. You'll be too busy."

Leila's beautiful eyes were suddenly misty.

"I'll need you all my life, Ede!" she cried, and I saw Mother Graham's eyes meet Mrs. Durkee's with the conviction which I shared that Alfred Durkee's young wife, so near the accolade of motherhood, had spoken only the truth.

She had always leaned upon her elder sister's superior strength and more disciplined nature, and as long as Edith was near her she would continue to do so. For Leila's own development under her coming new responsibilities, it was far better for Edith to be so far away that her younger sister could not appeal to her guidance. But it was not for that reason that Edith was coming North as soon as Leila's ordeal was safely over. I sensed this psychically even as Edith answered tenderly:

"And you'll have me all your life, Kitten. But," turning to Mother Graham and me, with an explanatory little smile, "I have the chance for some work which I really mustn't turn down. It means more of a future than I have dared to hope, and it wouldn't be fair to the—the people who have given me the opportunity for me to stay away from it any longer than is absolutely necessary."

"You Ought to Be Starting."

Was it my imagination, or did she hesitate perceptibly before the word "people?" Had she, perhaps, meant to say "person" and changed to the plural form because she had been seized with a sudden impulse to concealment?

My pulses throbbed with a jealous suspicion that long had been absent from them. None knew better than I—for I had heard the fact often enough from Dicky—that Edith Fairfax's artistic attainments were not very high. But I also knew that her determination never faltered, her energy never flagged and because of the respect for her grit and the genuine liking for her personality, prevailing among a coterie of artistic kindred spirits to whom Dicky and Lillian Underwood both belonged, there had come to her, through their unobtrusive aid a modest measure of success which she never could have attained unaided.

Leila's artistic ambitions had been early overshadowed by her love for Alfred Durkee, and I knew that the best friends of the two sisters had for a long time hoped that Edith would give up the struggle and accept the home and devotion which Dr. Jim Paige had kept inviolate for her.

But this revelation of her plans emphatically negatived all such hopes, and the jealous conviction that somehow, somewhere, Dicky was involved in her sudden change of schedule, suddenly loomed terrifyingly before me. I was able, however, to muster will-power enough to register conventional interest, but I was grateful indeed to my mother-in-law for her emphatic—and I guessed—intentional sidetracking of the subject.

"Margaret," she said didactically, "I don't want to hurry you, but if you're going to have a beach picnic with those children, you ought to be starting. You don't want to risk driving home after dark, you know."

HALLOWE'EN HOPES

Thus runs the old Hallowe'en legend, and Miss 1924 in a venturesome spirit does exactly as she is told—but Cupid takes a hand in this game, and places the one SHE wants right behind the curtains at the foot of the stairs, so she will be sure to find her real love and her true happiness in this Hallowe'en game.

YOUR HEALTH

What You Can Do to Avoid the Danger of Meningitis

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

DR. COPELAND

A FEW weeks ago there was a newspaper report of an epidemic of meningitis sweeping over Japan. There were said to be a total of 2,630 deaths out of a total of 4,888 cases reported. This represents a death rate of 54 per cent.

It is a dreadful disease which gives less than one chance out of two. History records very, very few such epidemics.

Of course, such figures as I have quoted, are most misleading. You must recall that for every case of disease reported to the authorities there are several that are not reported. Either because they are mild attacks or for other reasons, the doctors make no record of them.

It was my experience as Health Commissioner of New York City that many cases of epidemic disease were reported after the death certificate had been issued. Doctors too busy to report mild cases, knew it was necessary to report fatal cases in order to escape the wrath of the health authorities.

We must not be too critical of the doctors, because when an epidemic is sweeping the community the medical men are terribly overworked. They have no time for sleep, rest or food. The wonder is they live through the terrible ordeal. They can be forgiven if they neglect so obvious a duty as the reporting of every patient.

Epidemic meningitis is a terrible disease, but it is not nearly so fatal as the Japanese report would indicate. However, it is a disease to be dreaded and every effort must be made to avoid it.

What can be done to escape epidemic disease?

The other day I joked a health official for telling me he had a certain epidemic under control. It was a disease for which we have found no cause. So I asked him how he "controlled" the epidemic. The point is, it is impossible to "control" a disease with any prospect of success at least, unless the cause is definitely known.

This would be discouraging if there were nothing to add, but there is. It is believed that most of the contagious and infectious diseases are transmitted through the moist secretions of the body. The germ or virus is carried by the hands, or it is conveyed to another by the spray produced by sneezing, coughing or explosive talking.

You are apt to escape contagion if you will keep your hands clean and keep them away from your nose and mouth. Children must be taught that personal cleanliness and safety depend on keeping out of the mouth all pencils and playthings and never to touch their lips with their fingers.

This simple precaution is enough to give a considerable degree of protection against epidemic disease.

Ways to Bring New Beauty to Your Scalp and Your Hair

By LUCREZIA BORI
The Famous Spanish Prima Donna

LUCREZIA BORI

THERE is truly nothing more attractive than a well coiffured head of hair, whose glistening lights bespeak the scalp that is clean and cool.

I add the adjective cool, because a hot, feverish scalp never induced a growth of lovely hair. The scalp that is cool and healthful, as well as clean, produces hair that looks its loveliest in all surroundings. It is as attractive on a windy day outdoors as it is beneath the bright artificial lights of the evening ball-room.

Now there is much in knowing the needs of your own scalp, and looking after these needs with intelligent care.

For instance, while there are general rules for shampooing, each one must apply these rules according to her own particular needs. A shampoo every two weeks is the rule for the average woman, while some really need the weekly shampoo.

If your hair does not seem to need the shampoo every other week, I strongly advise letting three weeks elapse between shampoos. You can brush it thoroughly every day, and if you keep your brush spotlessly clean, this removes the dust that has collected in your hair during the day.

It is of course true that a certain amount of natural oil helps make your hair glisten with the luster that contributes much charm to its natural color. Dull lifeless hair is never as attractive as hair that seems fairly alive with vitality.

The best shampoo under normal conditions consists of:

Warm water	2 quarts
Shaven Castile soap	½ cake
Borax	1 teaspoonful

Put the borax and soap shavings into hot water and dissolve them thoroughly. Have your hair parted lengthwise and then again in many little parts running off the main one. Rub the lather over your scalp thoroughly with your fingers or with a fine brush. Rub and rub until you feel that your scalp is clean. After this wash, the hair itself, with all the care you would use in washing a fine handkerchief. You may need to wash your hair and scalp in two such preparations of lather.

Rinse it through many waters. You may have each rinse water cooler than the last, but I would not have even the very last one thoroughly cold. Let it be cool water, but I think cold water is too much of a shock to a delicate scalp.

The bath spray is the best agent for insuring a scalp against any clinging particles of soap. Be sure that every bit of soap has been removed from your scalp.

Dry your hair with a soft bath towel, and by rubbing it and your scalp with your finger-tips. I advise strongly against the use of artificial heat for drying your hair. This is too drying and makes your hair brittle.

If you follow the best rules for shampooing you can expect the best results in the beauty that your hair shows after the process is finished.

THE HOME KITCHEN

By JEANNETTE YOUNG NORTON
The Authority on Home Cooking

Solving the Problem of Refreshments for Small Parties.

IT is always a problem to decide on refreshments for small and informal parties in an apartment or small home where the hostess must do most of the preparation herself. The following suggestions may be helpful. For a card party, try bread and cheese hospitality, with good coffee.

Make the centerpiece of the small table an Edam cheese, with the top cut off and a cheese scoop to serve the center. Surround the cheese with several kinds of crackers. A pineapple cheese may be served in the same way. Four plates of sandwiches may be made beforehand and kept moist by wrapping in a damp linen napkin.

For one plate of sandwiches, make the filling of one part of roquefort to two parts of cream cheese, add pepper, salt, a little onion juice and a little heart of celery chopped as finely as possible. Add a little sweet cream to moisten the mixture to a spreading paste. Cut the crust from the bread which should be at least a day old. The sandwiches may be cut with a fancy cutter if desired.

The second plate may hold sandwiches filled with cream cheese worked to a paste with a little minced pineapple, a little salt, a few drops of lemon juice, and enough of the pineapple juice to moisten to a spreading paste. The third plate may have the sandwiches filled with cream cheese softened with a little sweet cream, with chopped seeded raisins, chopped pecan nuts, a few chopped maraschino cherries, and a saltspoonful of mixed spices to one package of cream cheese. Increase the ingredients in proportion with the quantity. For the fourth plateful make the fillings of thinly sliced Swiss cheese spread with a good English mustard.

A hot cheese dish that may be prepared ahead and put into the oven for four or five minutes while the coffee is being made is always a favorite. Take as many salted crackers as are needed and butter them with soft butter, then lay them on a baking sheet. Sprinkle the crackers with grated English cheese, dust lightly with a little salt and red pepper. Place in the oven long enough to heat and melt the cheese a little and serve hot.

Paper napkins, paper plates and tablecloth, leave only the cups, saucers and cheese knives to wash next morning. If more elaborate hot cheese dishes are offered it means the hostess cannot play for she would be too busy in the kitchen, especially if Welsh rarebit, golden buck, English monkey or any of those dishes were used.

Homemade apple pie, and lemon pie with coffee, or homemade doughnuts and coffee are used occasionally and always make a hit. Escalloped oysters, done in individual dishes make another unusual offering. Sandwiches and coffee are more troublesome, for several kinds are needed to make the lunch seem sufficient. But if decided upon here are suggestions for different kinds.

Tomato sandwiches are made of thinly sliced tomatoes dipped in heavy mayonnaise made with mustard and placed on bread which is then cut in rounds a little larger than the filling slice. Minced ham may have added to it one part of chopped chow-chow to two parts ham and enough of the liquid mustard is added to soften the mince. These sandwiches may be cut diamond shape.

Minced chicken, with enough mayonnaise to bind the mince, may have a few chopped capers added to give it a piquant flavor. Sardine filling is made by removing skin and bone from the fish, then add a little salt, red pepper, and lemon juice to soften the mass. If liked, a little olive oil may be added to blend the paste more perfectly. These may be cut into heart shapes.

Guava paste and cream cheese may be worked to a paste with a little sweet cream for a sweet sandwich. Baked bean sandwiches are made by mashing the beans with a potato masher then seasoning them with pepper, salt, a tiny bit of sugar and a little vinegar to soften the paste. Banana filling is made by mashing the fruit, adding a little salt, sugar, lemon juice, and marshmallow whip or cream to soften the paste.

Three-Minute Journeys

By Temple Manning

WHERE MEN BATHE BEFORE THEY ENTER A CHURCH.

IT frequently happens, when a visitor to the Far East glimpses a Moslem city, that his first impression is one of picturesqueness. In appearance these cities remind one of medieval days and bring to mind pictures of little towns and cities that flourished in the middle ages.

This first impression is usually changed to one of admiration and wonder as the traveler wanders through the city and acquaints himself with the customs and habits of the Moslem people.

Probably the reason they have remained so far behind in the steady march of modern methods is because they are unwilling to discard their age-old Eastern habits and ideas in favor of ever-changing Western methods.

A Bath Next to a Mosque.

But notwithstanding this inborn stubbornness to adopt new ideas and their evident repulsion to anything that suggests Western thought, these followers of Mohammed are very modern in their point of view, and personal hygiene and cleanliness is part of their religious teachings.

They use sand to cleanse themselves if water is not available, for a Moslemite considers cleanliness akin to godliness, and that is why a whole system of baths or fountains may be found adjoining every mosque and temple in the city.

The tourist, on entering these baths for the first time, is impressed by the brilliant designs, fine architecture and the combination of colors and various decorative patterns worked out in the construction of these "sebils," as the Turks call them.

We have in our cities a system that we call Turkish baths, but, at best, these cannot be compared with the odd and interesting water courses identified with any Islamic city. Some of these date back to the time of Kait Bey of the old Greco-Roman times.

The central room, where the bathing is done, is vaulted and colonnaded, and possesses a high ceiling which is usually domed. They spare no expense in erecting these buildings and only the best grades of stones and materials are used.

Before entering a mosque to worship Allah, a Mohammedan will first visit the baths and cleanse himself of all impurities. When he thinks he is sufficiently purified, he will enter the temple barefooted, so as not to soil the sacred carpet and incur the anger of Allah.

They place their sense of religious duty above all worldly and material things, and they pray and genuflect with great earnestness.

Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I have no mother, my sister and I keep house. I am a young girl nineteen years of age and have been going with a young man of thirty for over a year. I love him dearly and he says he loves me, although we are not engaged, we talk of getting married. I have other friends and so does he but I never enjoy myself away from him and I am always thinking of him. Do you think I love him and is he too old for me? My sister tries to make me think he is. I never get to go out with him or any one unless she goes with me. Do you think she is doing right in not letting me go? I try to please her and do what she wants me to, but it does not suit her and father thinks we ought to go together all the time wherever she wants to go. My sister is older than me and I suppose she thinks she is boss but I don't think she ought to have all the say. BOBBIE.

BOBBIE: From the way you describe the symptoms, I should diagonose the case as love. Eleven years difference in age is considerable where one of the persons is so young. Even if you should be convinced that you are in love with eachother, I caution you to wait a little while to see how lasting the attachment really is. As for your sister, you must not be so hasty in condemning her. She has a great responsibility on her young shoulders. As your older sister, she feels responsible for your welfare. And it is only natural that she should be worried when she sees you going out with a man who is so much older and more worldly than you are. However, when she knows that your attachment is a serious one, I am sure she will be discreet enough to let you manage your own affairs.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

Some time ago a young man called on me quite often.

But he has not called me now for several weeks. I saw him the other day so I know he is in town. Would it be all right to call him or send him a note and find out what's the matter? I've tried to forget him. But now I would like to try to regain his friendship.

IN DOUBT.

IN DOUBT: You might invite the young man to come to your house some time when you are having other visitors. However, the fact that the young man has stopped coming to see you does not necessarily mean that there is any tangible reason for it. It is very likely that you allowed him to lose interest in you. If he should come back, be sure that you make yourself entertaining and diverting for it is much more difficult to hold a man a second time after he has once drifted.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I went with a young man for a few months, we quarreled and now he does not speak to me, although he asks my friends about me. He will not speak to me when he sees me. He has gone with other girls but not as long as he has with me. I would like very much to speak to him but when I see him as the old saying goes, "I get cold feet."

He was never jealous of me and always told me he loved me and always will. Now I would like to have his friendship again and am asking you to let me know how to regain it. LONELY.

LONELY: You might ask one of your mutual friends to arrange a meeting. It could be done very easily, if she asked you to her house on the same evening when she was having other visitors. Under these circumstances it would be very easy to speak to him.

Annie Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. Letters to Miss Laurie should be addressed to her in care of this office.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 30.

A fairly fortunate day is forecast from the prevailing stellar activities, provided the favorable trend of affairs be not nullified by indulgence in sharp words and ill-temper or impetuosity. With these held in restraint there should be some substantial gain through industry and application. Those in the employment of others should push for recognition of merit and efficiency, as they are under favorable rule for preferment. It is a good time for renewing contracts, or signing documents or writing letters.

Those whose birthday it is have the prospect of a fairly fortunate year, with return for application and industry either in the employment of others or in business for one's self. Beware, however, quarrels and impulsive actions. A child born on this day may be disposed to be quarrelsome, rash and glib-tongued, unless given early training and discipline. It should be successful.

BOMB HOME OF MAYOR

NILES, O., EXECUTIVE'S HOME IS DAMAGED.

Family Asleep Upstairs Uninjured—Blasting Follows an Effort to Prevent Trouble Over Klan Parade.

NILES, O, Oct. 29.—Police and Trumble county officers are searching for the men who bombed the home of Mayor Harvey C. Kistler here early today.

The dwelling was damaged to the extent of $1,000. Mr. and Mrs. Kistler were sleeping in an upstairs room but were uninjured.

The bombing followed a long conference called by the mayor with klan and anti-klan representatives in an effort to prevent threatened trouble if members of the klan paraded in Niles Saturday. No settlement was reached at the meeting.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 29.—A corps of investigators was ordered to Niles by Governor Donahey today following the bombing of the mayor's home there and reports that rioting between klan and anti-klan forces is imminent.

Your Problems

BY MARY GORDON

Dear Mary Gordon: To change the subject I want to effuse over people, and mothers especially, who are eternally calling attention to the charms of their children. I feel like going to sleep over some of the lectures I hear from women who can talk of nothing else.

If kiddies are attractive and well behaved they will get all the attention that is coming to them without a fond mother giving a long recital of their virtues, and if they are not why make them conspicuous? I have a friend (who has inspired this outburst) who was the best kind of a pal before she had children but she has the worst case of ingrowing motherhood I ever saw. It is not a bit of fun to call on her or be with her for she shoves her wonderful babies down my throat every minute I am with her. They are very ordinary children at that but let Johnny or Jenny so much as lisp a word or pick up a toy and it is such a wonderful accomplishment! She can't carry on a conversation on anything but her babies and that is a monolog—for it is not babies in general with her, it is her babies.

I have noticed that she is not exceptional in it—there are lots of them. But what a relief it is to find a mother who leaves the open admiration of her children to other people. Please do not think that I am not fond of children. To me they are the most beautiful and fragrant blossoms in the garden of the world and I shall have my own share of them in due time but believe me I shall not make myself and my children a bore to my friends by harping on them all of the time.—So There!

A. Well, it is sort of boresome sometimes, but some day when you're a young father or mother or aunt or uncle you will understand. There is something in the miracle of childhood which is eternally wonderful to those who watch the little minds unfold and bodies grow.

Dear Mary Gordon: It is just a year ago since I have last written to this column, and I thought I never again would, for the girls are always so good and the men so bad, and the right is always wrong, and the wrong is always right. I just want to say that "Dreamer's" letter has done me a world of good, for all that he has said is absolutely true.

Now comes "An Old Fashioned Girl" and tries to contradict, and says men make it so hard for girls to be good; well did you ever hear of such an argument? Of course there are some imitation men who would do as she said, but a real man never; the thing for girls then to do, is to wait until a real man comes, and let the imitation alone. She is geting excited now, for she has slipped over the brink of thirty. I say she is lucky at that, I have slipped harder than that, and have gone over the brink of fifty and have not yet found my "dream girl" and yet you say there are good girls on every street corner, how, tell me, do you distinguish them from the others?

I have probably had as many girls as any one, and it has been my experience that if you don't do those "forbidden" things, somebody else will, and there you are out of a girl. If you try to be decent, and treat them right, and help them to do right, then you are the "goody goody" kind, and not at all interesting, and the next thing you know, you see them out with the "imitation" kind, having a good time, and you are left out in the cold. I hope that every girl that may read this can truly consider herself as belonging to the good type, and not the kind to which "Dreamer" objects.—A Modern Man.

A. I had been wondering what had happened you, Mr. Modern Man. I had no idea you were deliberately avoiding our company.

Don't you think, if you were to look around at the women of your own age, you would find one who is almost your ideal? Surely by that time they will have learned stability and common sense, if not before.

Dear Mary Gordon: Will you please tell me of some firms that will send me free samples to distribute and about what will they pay?

Also, do you know about a firm that buys old papers to make over into new? —"Earning My Way Thru School."

A. Watch the magazines and newspapers for advertisements for firms wishing samples distributed. Also visit your local stores, both mercantile and drug. Often they can give you that sort of work, I imagine.

There is usually someone in each town who sells old papers. Inquire at your newspaper office.

Now, Do You Know—

That if you pour a cupful of clear vinegar over the outside of the windshield, beginning at top and letting it run to the bottom, the rain will run right off the glass leaving a clear view ahead for the chauffeur despite a heavy rain?

That dirty electric lamps use the same power but give less light than clean ones?

That rotten stone mixed with oil to a creamy consistency makes a good polish for brass and copper?

That it has been estimated that 15 per cent of your income is a fair amount to expend for all your clothing?

That you can keep cranberries in jars for months if they are covered with water?

That you should never move a cake even a tiny bit until the center is set?

That you can easily remove the grease spots from your black woolen clothing if you wash the spots in a solution of borax and warm water, then rinse in a clear water and dry.

That if you use an old candle end to cork the glue bottle you will have no trouble with a sticking cork and the glue cannot spill out?

NORRIS IS FOR SPILLMAN

Says Powerful Combination Trying to Bring About the Defeat of Present Attorney General.

Attorney General Spillman returned to Lincoln Wednesday. He has been campaigning for the republican ticket in the northern part of the state the past week. At Norfolk Senator Norris called upon the voters to support Attorney General Spillman, whom, he said, influential interests were fighting.

"The people ought to know," Senator Norris is quoted as saying, "that there is a silent but powerful combination in this state quietly trying to bring about the defeat of Attorney General Spillman. His fight to get the farmers' organization on the Omaha grain exchange and the litigation he has pending against the oil combinations has brought on the opposition of these powerful interests. While doing his duty as attorney general and protecting the interests of our farmers and every citizen who uses an automobile, he has incurred the enmity and displeasure of the grain trust and the oil trust. I call upon all citizens regardless of party who are interested in the success of agriculture and who want to escape the domination of high prices for gasoline, to rally to the support of Attorney General Spillman."

SEVERAL DIPHTHERIA CASES.

There have been several cases of diptheria in the city schools. Dr. Katherine H. K. Wolfe, head of the department of hygiene, says that conditions are being carefully watched. The children in the lower grades at Saratoga are examined daily since the illness and death of two children of kindergarten age. The school nurses are watching to prevent any spread of the disease. Cultures are taken daily and throats examined of all children known to have been exposed to the disease.

Dr. Wolfe says this is the time of year when a certain amount of diptheria among children is usually found. There have been two cases in Clinton school but no deaths. A three year old child in the Bancroft district died, but the child was under school age and so far as known school children were not exposed.

The old and dangerous method of throwing red-hot rivets from forge to workmen is being replaced by a tube, thru which they are blown.

HARRISON ASKS QUESTION

Wants to Know How Much Money Newspaper Has Been Paid by Committee.

Frank A. Harrison, regional director for Senator LaFollette, today sent the following telegram to Frank P. Walsh, attorney for LaFollette at the senate committee inquiry in Washington, and to John M. Nelson, LaFollette campaign manager at Chicago:

"Have senate committee investigate books and records of the republican national committee to determine how much money was paid to the Omaha Bee or to Nelson B. Updike, its publisher."

Harrison said he sent the message because of the many reports reaching him that the Bee had been a beneficiary of the republican committee.

"The Bee is distributing thousands of free copies daily to people in Omaha and Council Bluffs, Ia., according to reliable information reaching me," Harrisan said.

"I am told the cost of this free distribution will not be less than $20,000. Of course someone is paying the bill.

"It is known now that the Omaha Daily Tribune, the German language newspaper, got $10,000 from the g. o. p. The public is entitled to know what other papers are also beneficiaries of the fund."

THE LINCOLN HIGH SCHOOL.

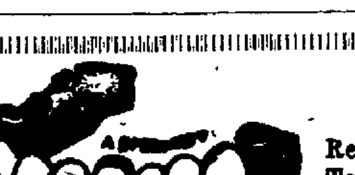

The physical examinations that have been given to high school students ever since school started have been completed and every pupil has been taken care of. Everyone was examined for eye, ear, nose, throat, vision, hearing and dental defects. A record of each student will be kept on file at the office of Dr. Katheryne H. K. Wolfe, supervisor of health in the Lincoln schools. Notices of defects in a pupil's health are to be sent to his parents and the aid of the school doctors offered in correcting faults. Four trained nurses were used to examine the students besides three doctors. Each first period class was called to go thru the examination. Notices of faults will be given to students in the first period classes.

The parents of high school pupils last week received 1,970 notices of falling or unsatisfactory work, which are sent out every six weeks. This is an increase of forty-three over the first six weeks of school last semester. This is due, according to the office, to the much larger enrollment.

The date of the annual junior class party has been set for November 5, according to Hamilton Hatfield, chairman of the entertainment committee. The class is planning on one of the biggest affairs of its kind. The night of the party is the day before the teachers' convention, to be held a week from Thursday and Friday. Tickets will sell for 25 cents this year. Prizes will be given to the winners of contests to be staged. A large orchestra has been procured to play for the dance. The chairman of committees are: Publicity, Ruth Mayhew; entertainment, Hamilton Hatfield; decorating, Richard Page; refreshments, Dorothy Sleeth; Sam Benbrook, class president, is at the head of all committees.

Boils Pimples and Blackheads/

Why worry and fret—wish and hope? Why be jealous of those with clear, soft skin? It is within reach of all.

A RICH, RUDDY, wholesome complexion is possible. It is not something that is just beyond your reach. Neither is it something that requires years and years of toil to acquire.

But you must have a foundation for a clear and beautiful complexion. You can be sure of this: Nature has no substitute for red-blood-cells. So-called skin disorders—pimples — blackheads—boils and kindred disorders are nothing less than billboards announcing that the blood is in a disordered condition. More red-blood-cells! That is what you need when you see pimples staring at you in the mirror. Blackheaded pimples are worse! Boils are worse yet! Eczema is not to be trifled with! You can try everything under the sun—you'll find only one answer. More cell-power in your blood. The amazing results produced by an increase in red-blood-cells, is one of the A B C's of medical science. Red-cells mean clear, pure, rich blood. They mean clear, ruddy, lovable complexions. They mean nerve-power, because all your nerves are fed by your blood. They mean freedom forever from the blackheaded pest; pimples, boils; from eczema and from rheumatism impurities, too. From that tired, rundown feeling. Red-blood-cells are the most important thing in the world to each of us. S.S.S. will aid Nature in building them for you! S.S.S. has been known since 1826 as one of the greatest blood-builders, blood-cleansers and system strengtheners ever produced. Because the medicinal ingredients of S.S.S. are purely vegetable, it may be taken with perfect safety. Begin taking S.S.S. today—possess that clear, soft, velvety skin and bring the youthful glow back into the cheeks. S.S.S. will do it!

Drake Coach Says Valley Watching Best Battle

BULLDOG MENTOR IN REVIEW OF VALLEY

Ossie Solem Believes Teams of Missouri Valley Will Compare With Any in Country This Season.

BY OSSIE SOLEM
Coach, Drake University.

DES MOINES, Ia., Oct. 29.—The keenest battle in the history of Missouri Valley conference football has developed in the last two weeks. While Missouri and Drake, the only undefeated teams in the conference, seem to hold a slight edge at present, the battle for titular honors is far from settled, and games to be played on November 1 and November 8 may change the entire complexion of the squads.

There seems to be little difference in the ability of Nebraska, Kansas, Kansas Aggies, Ames, Missouri and Drake, altho the first four of these teams have each suffered at least one conference defeat. None of the teams has been overwhelmed, lucky breaks having turned the tide in several contests.

Upset Not Unlikely.

Nebraska lost to Oklahoma two weeks ago by one touchdown after a desperate struggle, while the Jayhawkers, Wild Cats and Cyclones have emerged from heart breaking games slightly behind in the scoring column. Any one of these is likely to upset the dope bucket several times before the close of the season.

The Missouri-Nebraska, Kansas Aggie-Ames and Kansas-Washington battles will be watched this week end with a great deal of interest and most anything is likely to happen. While it appears from previous contests that the first two games will be the headliners, Washington is given to surprising the natives and may do so on Saturday at St. Louis.

After four strenuous games in as many weeks, the Drake team will rest this week, but commencing November 8, the Bulldogs have four mighty tough assignments for succeeding Saturdays, including Kansas, Kansas Aggies, Ames and Florida. The team came out of the Oklahoma game in good condition.

Compare Well With Best.

I believe that the Missouri Valley conference teams this season will compare favorably with those of any conference in the country.

SOME SECOND THOUGHTS

So far this week the Cornhuskers have been kept scrimmaging. Both practice periods have found two 'varsity teams going against each other. Every effort is being made to perfect the Huskers' defense against the forward pass. On several occasions this season the Nebraskans' defense against the overhead game has resembled the tactics that a fat, hired girl might employ under similar circumstances. There'll be no more of that, however, if the coaches can possibly avoid it.

While there are no injuries which are expected to keep any of the regulars out of Saturday's fray there are some that are handicapping the team because it is making it impossible for the regulars to work together this week. Captain Ed Weir who has been unable to suit up either on account of a pulled tendon. Doug Myers watched Tuesday's practice from the sidelines after returning from the Lincoln sanitarium where he had a swollen ankle "baked out." Both guards, Ladd Hubka and Joe Weir were on the sidelines.

Because of these absentees there was a switch necessary in both backfield and line. John Rhodes was moved to fullback, a position he is very fond of. Frank Mielenz, Wahoo, who showed such promise in the early season, was at halfback, again demonstrating his shiftiness as a ball lugger. Mielenz went out before the Illinois game with a sprained ankle. Bill Kamm began the scrimmage at quarterback but he took a hard rap on the head in a pile-up and retired in favor of Al Bloodgood.

Missouri has the edge in both weight and experience over the Cornhuskers. The Tigers have won all four games played thus far this season. The Tigers are one of two undefeated teams in the Missouri valley conference.

PICK SIX BOXERS WORTHY OF TITLE

Elimination Series to Be Conducted to Find Dundee's Successor as Featherweight Champion of World.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Six leading American featherweights have been nominated by the New York boxing commission to compete in an elimination tournament to decide the winner of the world's championship which was vacated by Johnny Dundee, who resigned because he could not longer make the weight.

The selections of the commission were: Louis Kaptan, Meriden, Conn.; Danny Kramer, Philadelphia; Lewi Paulson, Salt Lake City; Jose Lombardo, Panama; Mike Dundee, Rock Island, Ills., and Bobby Garcia, Camp Holabird, Md.

The commission proposed that the boxers be paired by a drawing out of a hat and that the first series be held in Madison Square Garden on November 21.

The commission also announced that the lightweight elimination to determine a challenger for Benny Leonard has been temporarily abandoned as no promoter could be found to put on the series.

Walker Boxes Jock Malone.

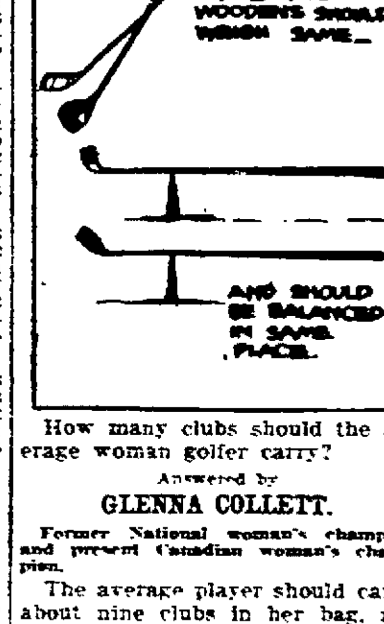

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Mickey Walker, world's welterweight champion, fights Jock Malone, veteran middleweight of St. Paul, in a twelve round bout tonight at Newark. The bout will have no title significance, as neither boxer is making the welterweight limit of 148 pounds.

Young Bob Beats Burke.

BOSTON, Oct. 29.—Young Bob Fitzsimmons knocked out Joe Burke, Detroit light heavyweight, in the third round.

WOMEN'S CLUBS

Answered by
GLENNA COLLETT.
Former National woman's champion and present Canadian woman's champion.

The average player should carry about nine clubs in her bag, not counting an extra putter, which is a good thing to have handy in case you go suddenly "off" your regular one. The nine clubs will consist of three woodens—driver, brassie and spoon. These should be perfectly matched and about the same weight. All the clubs, including the irons, should weigh as nearly the same as possible and be balanced in the same place, so that one does not have to change the swing in order to adapt it to the club. The irons including the mid-iron, mashie-iron, mashie, mashie-niblick, niblick, and putter. A short club with a little more loft than a putting cleek is also useful from the edge of the green. A jigger fulfills these requirements.

SATIRIST AT BALL GAME

BERNARD SHAW TELLS OF FIRST GAME HE SAW.

Could Not Tell What It Was About, But Thinks It Better Than Cricket.

(Copyright, 1924, U. S., Canada, Great Britain and Japan, by G. Bernard Shaw. All rights reserved. Released exclusively thru North American Newspaper Alliance).

Editor's note: George Bernard Shaw, famous playwright and satirist, saw the Giants defeat the White Sox, 3 to 2, in London on October 24, under the eyes of royalty, the duke and duchess of York being among the spectators. How baseball strikes the highest highbrow of the British isles is set forth in the following article by Shaw, who is no novice to sport, having been a sporadic writer on pugilism since he published the novel of the prize ring, "Chasel Byron's Profession," forty years ago. Incidentally Shaw calls McGraw the most remarkable man in America. By George Bernard Shaw of "St. Joan." "Man and Superman," etc., and temporary special baseball correspondent of the North American Newspaper Alliance.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—It is a noteworthy fact that kicking and beating have played so considerable a part in the habits which necessity has imposed on mankind in past ages that the only way of preventing civilized men from kicking and beating their wives is to organize games in which they can kick and beat balls. Hence cricket and football in England and baseball in America.

Vent for Emotions.

Women beat their husbands and children for want of an energetic alternative. Musical nations like the Irish resort to persecution to satisfy the irresistible impulse to hit something. The Ulster rum has saved many a Catholic from a broken head. It was as a sociologist, not as a sportsman—I cannot endure the boredom of sport—that I seized the opportunity of the London visit of the famous Chicago Sioux and the New York Apaches (I am not quite sure of the names) to witness for the time a game of baseball. I found that it has the great advantage over cricket of being sooner over. As far as I can grasp it, it combines the best features of but primitive form of cricket (the only tolerable one) known as tip and rum, with those of lawn tennis, push—in—the—corner and Handel's "Messiah" and it surpasses them all (except Handel) in giving scope for the higher human faculties of rhetoric, irony and eloquent emotional appeal.

Even those players who had no gift of eloquence expressed their souls in dithyrambic cries like the Greek "Evoo," which sounded to me like "Attaboy." I confess that I am not enough of a Greek scholar to translate attaboy but it is a very simulating ejeculation. What is both surprising and delightful is that the spectators are allowed and even expected to join in the vocal part of this.

New Feature for Cricket.

I do not see why this feature should not be introduced into cricket. There is no reason why the wicket keeper should not incite the bowler to heroic exertions by combined taunting and coaxing or why the field should not try to put the batsman off his stroke at the critical moment by neatly timed disparagements of his wife's fidelity and his mother's respectability. It is true that the English cricketer would not do it exactly in that way. He would cry "get your hair cut" or "take off that paper collar" or "beaver" but the intention and the effect would be the same and the spectators could let themselves go utterly, rivalling each other in every art of the satirist and every apostrophe of the hero-worshiper but even with this borrowed improvement I think cricket would still be unable to compete with baseball except in slowness and stupidity, in which qualities it is without parallel or rival.

When I arrived on the ground royalty in the person of the duke of York was doing its share of the daily task, the common round, by shaking hands with the carefully aligned and so far spotlessly clean Sioux and Appaches who confronted royal condescension with republican fortitude. They were not proud, these heroes, and I shall never forget that Mister McGraw, in whom I at least discovered the authentic, Most Remarkable Man in America, shook hands with me. He even shook hands with the duke but tho he was very nice to us, there is no denying that he played us both right off the stage.

Duke Little Slow.

The duke, by the way, failed to catch the point of the game that reminded me of our performance of Handel's greatest oratorio. I do not know how it is in America, but in England the audience always stands up for the Hallelujah chorus. In America during a game of baseball it stands up for the seventh inning. And we all did stand up except the royal party which, not having been properly coached in the ritual, remained seated, a scandal that evidently made a most painful impression on the Americans present.

Lest this should result in a war, may I assure the United States that it was an error of pure ignorance. The king will be present at the next match but one and I have no doubt that if the president will write and explain what is expected of him he will rise reverently at the proper moment and instruct Lord Chamberlain to see that the court does the same.

The British spectators were bewildered by the proceedings at first. The players began by playing without a ball and with an Indian club instead of a proper bat. They varied this by imitating a slow motion cinematographic picture.

All this innocence took to the part of the celebrated, but to us unknown game, and when the real play began we made no distinction and innocently supposed that for some mysterious reason baseball was played partly without a ball and partly with one. The Indian club was a terrible thing, a block. We could not conceive any serious player using such a thing. As to the bowling, an English bowler would have been ordered off the field for it.

A Little Description.

The bowler began like a highlander throwing the hammer and then shied the ball with all might straight to the wicket keeper for a hard catch. The batsman incidentally swiped at it as it passed with his absurd club and if, as sometimes happened, he caught it with a masterly drive to square leg everybody said "foul" (without the least foundation) and nothing else happened. But if he drove it back, then it was a case of tip and run and push-in-the-corner unless he was caught out, in which case we of England applauded heartily as it was the only transaction in the game which was in the least intelligible to us.

I regret to have to say that the Sioux and Appaches played equally badly, for after extraordinary exertions their scores were one and two respectively. An English cricket team would have hit up hundreds with half the trouble. Either Appaches or the Sioux—I forget which—managed at last either to hit up three or to fail to hit anything, at which point they suddenly left in disgust for Dublin and the cricket-trained duke and his very attractive duchess, who had been looking forward to the usual five or six hours of innings, slowly realized that the match was over and after some incredulous hesitation rose and made for their carriage.

Slides For Base.

Still, it was a great occasion. The only regrettable incident occurred at a very exciting and totally unintelligible moment in the game when the champions, who were playing push-in-the-corner, hurled themselves on the ground like runaway boys when a policeman overtakes them. An American next to me so far forgot himself as to shout: "This is better than the Birmingham repertory theatre." As this theatre is famous for its performances of my "Back to Methuselah" I thought the remark unnecessary and in questionable taste.

If any American can be so utterly benighted as to enjoy push-in-the-corner more than my greatest play he should, for the sake of his country, conceal his shameful preference instead of shouting it in the ear of royalty and of the author. But if an Englishman had shouted "This is better than Lords" (Lords is the London cricket ground where all the great matches used to be played) I should have been disposed to agree with him. To go back to cricket after baseball is like going back to Shakespeare played in five acts with fifteen minute intermissions after seeing it played straight thru in the correct Shakespearian way. Cricket is doomed by its "overs" as old fashioned Shakespeare is by its acts. It is slow, slodgy and obvious. Baseball is swift, intense and (as to what it is all about) inscrutable. Of course, many Englishmen may dislike it on that account.

A Swift Game.

I once helped to establish a reformed country hotel where the villagers could get good beer for their money instead of the horrible stuff they were accustomed to. Far from appreciating my efforts they complained bitterly that the process of getting drunk, which the bad beer prolonged cheaply and deliciously for hours, was precipitated by good beer which reminded to insensibility in thirty minutes.

Men of this stamp are capable of preferring a silent game which lasts from ten to six and which consists mostly of changing over and going in and out of a pavilion to an uproarious, impetuous, quick firing whirlwind of a game that lasts no more than ninety minutes, that is, long enough to give you all the amusement you desire but not long enough not to give you time to begin wondering which is the fool of the two, Apache who is watching at a ball or you who are looking at him as if your life depended on his success, and that is just the right time for a game to last.

As I left the ground one of my hosts expressed a hope that I would come again. A man asks you to come and see baseball played twice. It sets you asking yourself why you want to see it played twice. It sets you asking answarable question. It is a mad world. But I will not deny that I enjoyed my afternoon. I may have the makings of a fan for all I know.

KAGGIES OUTPLAY MISSOURI TIGERS

Statistics Favor Bachman's Eleven But Final Count in Bengals' Favor—Take Consolation—Offer No Alibi.

MANHATTAN, Kas., Oct 28.—The Kansas Aggies had nothing to be ashamed of in their showing against the Missouri Tigers despite the fact that the Aggies took the short end of the score. An analysis of the play by play account of the Kansas Aggie-Missouri game as received in Manhattan shows an advantage in favor of the Kansans in almost everything except touchdowns.

Without detracting from the playing of the fine team which took the long end of the score, it still is interesting to know that the holders of the short end had many consolations altho not a real alibi. Missouri used her offensive arm effectively when the opportunity appeared for the most effective use of it, therefore nobody can say she didn't deserve to win. The showing which the Aggies made only adds to Missouri's credit for the victory.

The Aggies had the ball almost two-thirds of the playing time of the game as indicated by the 71 offensive plays of the Wildcats to the 37 of the Tigers. Since Missouri's second touchdown came late in the second half this state of affairs cannot be attributed to Missouri's "defensive tactics" for Missouri had no reason to employ such tactics until the last moments of the fourth period. It can be explained by the fact that the Aggies were making first downs when they got the ball. A careful checking of the play by play account reveals the surprising fact that the Tigers earned only three first downs against 12 for the Aggies, and that Missouri's total yardage gained from scrimmage, including forward passes and runs after passes was only 128 against 247 for the Aggies.

The Tigers had only two yards the better of the Aggies in yardage from forward passes, gaining 57 to the Aggies 55 yards.

The Aggies completed a greater proportion of their forward passes, six out of sixteen attempted, against two out of six attempted for Missouri. Sad to relate, however, Missouri intercepted two of the Aggies' incomplete passes, one of which resulted in the winning Tiger touchdown.

Aggie punting was about one-half yard better than that of Missouri. That of the former averaged 38 yards, the latter 37 1-2 yards. The average runback for each team was two yards. The Aggies were less fortunate than Missouri in penalties, getting seven for a total of 45 yards, while the Tigers got only three for 35 yards. Missouri recovered the only Aggie fumble while the Aggies recovered one of the two Missouri fumbles.

Aggie coaches and men are united in their praise of the clean sportsmanship which they observed at Missouri. They offer no reason for their defeat except that Missouri had the best of the breaks which may happen in anybody's football game.

Dolan Makes Judge Landis Defendant

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—"Cozy" Dolan's suit for damages against Commissioner Landis will be filled in federal court here before the end of the week, according to Wm. J. Fallon, counsel for the former New York Giant coach.

Dolan has not decided on the sum he will ask the court as balm for the reputation he says Landis destroyed by bribery charges just before the world series, but it will not be less than $100,000 according to Fallon.

Dolan also will ask for his share of the world's series money and a cancellation of the ban which makes it impossible for him to return to organized baseball.

It was intended after Dolan had retained Follan as his counsel to make John A. Heydler, president of the National league and Ban Johnson president of the American league, as defendants with Landis in the suit but it is understood now that this plan may be abandoned.

Fallon says that he will insist upon introducing as evidence the testimony that Landis took from Dolan, Sand, Art Fletcher, manager of the Phils, and others that were called before the commissioner.

Landis consented to give only a few details of the testimony in Washington, saying that he would make the testimony public only when he thought it was proper.

Simpson College Points For Game

INDIANOLA, Ia., Oct. 28.—With an unbroken string of victories to its credit thus far this season, the Simpson college football team which will clash with Nebraska Wesleyan in Lincoln on Armistice day, November 11, is preparing for the hardest assignment in the Iowa conference this week-end when it encounters Parsons college at Fairfield.

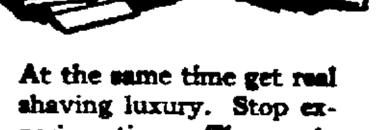

With the Parsons game out of the way, the decks will be cleared for the Nebraska Wesleyan tilt which Coach Workman regards as the crucial game on his menu. Nebraska Wesleyan being a member of a conference made up largely of universities and state schools, is looked upon as "big game" by the followers of Simpson, a member of the Iowa conference composed entirely of colleges of the Hawkeye state.

Coach "Dopey" Workman will devote particular attention to the engagement with Coach Preston's crew and has already been priming his men for the tilt. The Simpson mentor realizes that the Nebraska Methodists will be hard to defeat on their home grounds before a homecoming crowd, but in view of the fine record the Red and Gold has made to date, local fans believe the trick can be turned.

The game with Parsons will probably decide the championship of the Iowa conference. The Parsons outfit is coached by Glenn Devine, a member of the Iowa university team which won the championship of the "Big Ten" conference three years ago, while Coach Workman, Simpson mentor, was quarterback on the championship Ohio State eleven in 1920.

As a result of the games last week-end Simpson is tied with three other schools in the Iowa conference race, Parsons, Morningside and Buena Vista.

Missouri Will Carry Fight to Nebraska Eleven

WILL BRING ALL TIGER RESERVES

Bengal Squad May Include Thirty-five Players — Don Faurot Declared Eligible for Game.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Oct. 29.—Working feverishly, almost frantically, University of Missouri football coaches and players are driving ahead with their preparations for the Missouri-Nebraska game at Lincoln Saturday afternoon. The Bengals, leaving here Thursday afternoon, have had but three days to prepare for this game, which now looms as the possible peak of their season, and every minute is being utilized in afternoon practice periods and night work on the blackboard and gymnasium floor.

Hoping for victory, but realizing that they are to meet perhaps the strongest foe of their season, the Missouri mentors will take to Lincoln a squad of perhaps thirty-five men, with the view of having their entire reserve force upon the bench with each man ready for use should a point arrive when he seems the one best suited for the task in hand. The Bengal squad will leave here early Thursday afternoon, stop in Kansas City for an hour Thursday night, and arrive in Lincoln early Friday morning. Friday afternoon the Missourians will work out in the Nebraska stadium.

Tigers Hurt by Injuries.

The injury toll will be felt seriously for the first time this year Saturday. Swofford, perhaps the most reliable of the reserve backfield men, and Moulder, the only veteran quarterback on th squad, are definitely out, and there seems small chance that Arthur Coglizer, punter and end, will have recovered sufficiently from his injured knee to get into the lineup.

Improvement in the condition of Adams and Jackson may make up for the loss of Swofford and Moulder and if Richerson's sore knee does not trouble him he can handle the kicking and play guard, while Bacchus replaces Coglizer at end, but these changes will weaken the strength of the squad held on the bench for replacement purposes.

The starting lineup will probably not be definitely picked until Friday, when the Missouri coaches will check up for the last time on their injured and decide which of them are in condition to face the Huskers.

Monday afternoon was given over by the Tigers almost entirely to signal drill and limbering up exercises, but there was a full program on for Tuesday, with the varsity meeting Nebraska's football style in the hands of the freshmen, and Wednesday's schedule was practically the same. Whether there will be a practice Thursday has not yet been determined, altho it is likely that the men who make the trip will be excused from classes Thursday afternoon for a more or less perfunctory workout before they entrain.

Don Faurot in Good Grace.

A ray of hope for the crippled Missouri backfield came Tuesday with the announcement of C. L. Brewer, director of athletics, that Don Faurot had been found eligible by the university athletic committee and it is likely that he will be used in Saturday's game.

The placing of Faurot's name on the eligibility list will do much to make up for the loss of Swofford and Moulder who are out for the season with injuries Brewer said that Faurot had not been ineligible but that his name had been held off the eligible list until now because of a question which arose in his case.

Aside from Moulder and Swofford, Coglizer remains the only Tiger not in uniform and not in scrimmage.

The determination of the Missouri coaches to throw their whole strength into the conflict with the Huskers, and to carry the battle to the Nebraskans was seen in the style of work which the squad was given Tuesday. Both Henry and his chief assistant, Harry Kipke, spent all of the their time with the team that was developing offense, leaving the defensive work to the other members of the coaching staff.

Goldstein to Meet Martin.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Abe Goldstein, world's bantamweight champion, has signed to meet Eddie (Cannonball) Martin in a bout at Madison Square Garden, December 12. The match will be for fifteen rounds at the bantam limit, 118 pounds.

West Point—The Army went thru a long drill in which Coach McEwan tried out Army's defense against Yale formations as executed by the scrubs.

Lincoln Captain Down With Injury

Phil Teal, captain of the Lincoln high school team, who has been hurt since the Omaha Central game, was forced to undergo an operation on his leg Tuesday evening. He will be out of the game for some time as he will probably have to remain in bed for a week or ten days.

Teal, according to Coach Browne, should never have entered the Beatrice game but he pleaded so hard that the Red and Black mentor let him in for one quarter. He limped from the field Tuesday evening after practice but was still "covering up" the seriousness of the hurt, Coach Browne said. When he got home the pain was so excruciating that he was rushed to a hospital and the leg opened at once. It was found that a blood-clot had formed under a muscle.

Lincoln high, as a result of Teal's injury, will invade Grand Island Friday without a leader. The third city eleven dropped a game to Central City last week but Grand Island has a strong eleven and it would not be adverse to dropping a fly in Lincoln's championship ointment.

What Grange is to Illini and Tryon to Colgate, Rhodes is to Nebraska

(By Cornhusker News Service)

Illinois has its Grange, Colgate has its Tryon and Nebraska has its "Choppy" Rhodes. So argue Cornhusker football followers, who have viewed the mighty Grange and Tryon and also have seen Rhodes against the Illinois and Colgate Maroons.

The Nebraska halfback scored in both games. Against Illinois he broken loose in the opening quarter for a 40-yard run and touchdown and against Colgate, Rhodes counted two touchdowns.

The average ball-lugger makes long gains by running the ends to break loose thru an open field. Not so with Rhodes. Given an opening by the forwards, Rhodes' specialty is to ram thru the enemy's line, after which he whirls away from the secondary defense, sidesteps the safety man and speeds to the goal. Rhodes flashed against Illini in his 40-yard run to touchdown and twice repeated against Colgate.

Bowled Over Two Times.

Grabbing a forward pass from Bloodgood, the Nebraska halfback was twice knocked down by Colgate tacklers, but bounced to his feet to emerge from the pile with a clear field to the Colgate goal.

JOHN RHODES

Another plunge thru the line and sprint netted Rhodes a second touchdown on a 70-yard drive. Plunging and whirling halfbacks of the Rhodes type are scarce in the football realm.

Rhodes is a Nebraska product in every sense of the word. He was born on a farm near Ansley, Neb., and moved to town when four years of age.

He played four years of basketball, three years of track and three years of football at Ansley high school, a school of but fifty boys.

Rhodes started playing football when he was but sixteen years of age and while a junior at Ansley high he captained a team which was undefeated and filed a bid for state honors. During his high school career Rhodes never lost a minute of play in any contest, never calling time out for an injury. His work as a fullback drew the attention of high school critics and he was accorded a place on "all" teams and the rolls of honor during his junior and senior years.

Plays In Other Sport.

The Nebraska star is also a basketball and track man. In high school he led a group championship team at Ansley and at a state track meet, broke two state records in one afternoon. He is the present holder of Nebraska interscholastic records in three events. His mark for the high jump is six feet, his broad jump record is 21 feet 10½ inches and his pole vault record is 11 feet 8 inches.

Thruout his high school track career, Rhodes had spirited competition with Ed. Weir, present Cornhusker captain. Rhodes finished a close second to Weir in the high school pentathlon, establishing a new pentathlon record in the pole vault when he cleared the bar at 12 feet.

He is an all-around athlete. While at Ansley high he entered a big sectional meet at Hastings, Neb., as Ansley's lone representative. Single-handed he scored fifteen points by capturing three firsts while Hastings won the meet with 18½ points.

At the Custer county meet Rhodes took part in nie events, won seven firsts, tied for first in another and took a fourth. Three hundred athletes competed at the meet.

Rhodes took part in nine events, last year, football, track and baseball, "Choppy" being one of the pitching aces of Coach W. G. Kline's baseball squad.

Brother Played Before Him.

He is a brother of Roscoe "Dusty" Rhodes, who was elected Nebraska football captain in 1918 but left to join the American forces where he was killed in the Argonne just before the armistice was signed.

The young Nebraska halfback is twenty-one years of age, he is six feet in height, weights 172 pounds and is playing his second year of football on the Nebraska varsity, having started every game the Cornhuskers have played the past two seasons. Last year he was stationed at an end but this season he was moved to the backfield. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Rhodes of Ansley, Neb.

Cambridge—Kept at it until darkness, the Harvard varsity was put thru a rough and tumble scrimmage yesterday, with the scrubs repeatedly tearing thru the regular's line for good gains.

PLAYERS PICK JOE DUGAN, TRAYNOR

Dugan Gets Almost All Votes for Third Base in American League While Traynor Is Favored in National.

Editor's Note—This is the eighth of a series of daily articles analysing the vote by which the players of the two big leagues picked all-league teams. The vote was taken for exclusive publication in this city by The Journal, the ballots being secured by the North American Newspaper Alliance, of which this paper is a member.

If you were asked which player in the big leagues would come nearest to getting the unanimous vote of his comrades as the premier performer in his position it's a 10-to-1 bet you'd mention Babe Ruth, wouldn't you?

But you'd be all wrong. Joe Dugan, Yankee team mate of Ruth, is the best vote gatherer in either the American or National leagues.

The poll taken of big league players shows that of the 116 American leaguers who cast ballots, 114 wanted Dugan as third baseman on the all-American league team. The two dissenters were divided in their choice. One was for Jones of Detroit. The other chose Bluege of Washington.

Jones got his vote from one of his own team mates, but Bluege was the choice of a player on an opposition team.

Dugan Beat With Bat.

Granted that Jones and Bluege were the equals of Dugan in a fielding sense, which many will dispute, the Yankee was superior to both on the offense.

	G	AB	R	H	HR	SB	Pct.
Dugan	148	609	105	186	3	2	.304
Bluege	117	404	69	110	2	7	.272
Jones	110	395	53	107	0	1	.271

Willie Kamm of the White Sox, altho receiving no first-choice votes apparently is the second most valuable third-sacker in the Johnson circuit, according to the vote of the players. Of eighty-one players who made a second choice, 21 selected Kamm; Bluege got 19 votes, Jones 15, Robertson of St Louis, 10, and Lutzke of Cleveland, and Hale of Philadelphia, three each. Of Robertson and Hale it can be said that both were heavier artillerymen than either Dugan or Kamm. Robertson ended the season with an average of .317, Hale with an average of .314.

A year ago Frankie Frisch probably would have been a favorite for the position of third baseman on an all-National league team. Having played all the past season at second base, he was eliminated from consideration as a candidate for the other position in the minds of most National leaguers. A considerable number, however, decided he ought to be on the all-league team even if it was necessary to switch him from his regular post.

Traynor Wins in National.

A majority of the votes go to Traynor of the Pittsburgh team, who, altho not quite up to his 1923 standard, still performed brilliantly in 1924, particularly during the latter part of the season. The ballot:

Traynor, 68, Frisch, 20, Groh, New York, 14, Pinelli, Cincinnati, 6; Friberg, Chicago, 2, Stock, Brooklyn, 1.

The vote for Frisch as third baseman, taken in conjunction with the vote given him for second base and shortstop, presents an interesting circumstance. Thirty-six wanted him at second base and four at shortstop. In brief, a total of sixty, more than half of those voted, gave him a first choice ballot for some position on the all-National aggregation.

Of Traynor it can be said that the figures bear out the contention of a majority of the players that he was the best of the National league third basemen this year. He fielded as brilliantly as Groh, his nearest rival, and excelled the Giant as a batter and base runner. Their records:

	G	AB	R	H	HR	SB	Pct.
Traynor	142	545	86	160	5	25	.294
Groh	144	569	82	157	2	8	.281

On one of the ballots which chose Traynor, was written this notation: "Traynor would be the greatest shortstop in baseball if given a chance to show there."

None of the experts picked Traynor as all-American third baseman. Babe Ruth was the only one to select Dugan.

ALONG THE SIDELINES

Ann Arbor—Special plays devised by Coach Little to stop Lidberg's line plunges and Graham's open field dashes were given their initial tryout on the Michigan field yesterday in preparation for Minnesota.

Minneapolis — Confronted with perfecting new offensive and defensive play to use against the Wolverines, Coach Spaulding kept the team until long after dark drilling it "to the bone."

ALONG THE SIDELINES.

Evanston—Profiting by the scare thrown into camp by attended forward passes of the Michigan Aggies, Coach Thistlethwaite ran his Northwestern team thru a long drill on breaking up aerial plays.

Chicago — Punting drill and scrimmage against the frosh using Purdue and Illinois plays comprised the Chicago practice indicating that though Stagg fears Purdue, he is making plans also for the Maroon clash with the Illini.

Urbana—Gloom hung over the Illinois practice field today with two of the main cogs of "Red" Grange's interference out with injuries. They are McIlwain and Leonard.

Lafayette — With the crippled list dwindling, Coach Phelan devoted a major portion of the practice session to explanation of special plays and formations to be used against the heavy Maroon eleven.

Bloomington — Indiana showed well in scrimmage against the freshman employing Northwestern plays and scrimmage was suspended early in favor of passing and punting practice.

Columbus—Realizing that his defense is as good at present as he can expect, Coach Wilce sent the Buckeyes thru long offensive practice. Linesmen confronted the tackling dummies and backfield men the straps.

New Haven—The Yale varsity will be drilled in offensiv play during the week in preparation for the Army game. The scrubs, using Army plays were unable to penetrate the regulars line yesterday in scrimmage.

Commissioner Cowgill filed a communication to other members of the city council Wednesday, stating that Halleck C. Young and Alice S. Young, his wife, have not complied with city ordinances in that they failed to construct certain sidewalks by October 1, 1924, and failed to pave intersection returns at Woods avenue and Thirty-third, and at Thirty-sixth and O streets. Woods Brothers' Highland Park addition was platted by the city on condition that these improvements would be made, according to the commissioner, who also says that he understands the alleged non-compliance with the ordinance may effect titles to the property in this addition.

DEFRAUD BUSINESS MEN BY CANVASS

Lincoln Merchants Are Warned Against Collectors Who Pose as Employes of Postal Clerks and Carriers.

W. S. Whitten, secretary of the chamber of commerce, made public the following letter from William Otte, vice president of the national federation of post office clerks. A word to the wise, such as is contained in the letter, should be sufficient for Lincoln business men, Mr. Whitten believes:

"Advertising solicitors in Chicago and Kansas City have mulcted business men of thousands of dollars on the misrepresentation that they are employed by post office clerks and letter carriers to collect funds.

"These fakers have been exposed in Chicago and Kansas City and forced to discontinue their irregular activities. They may attempt to work in other midwestern cities. If they do, please turn them over to the inspectors for prosecution.

"No one is authorized to solicit funds from advertisers for the National Federation of Post Office Clerks or the Union Post Clerk. Warn your local merchants against this gang."

railroad expenses and meals for the actors and actresses.

Gilson Gardner, Washington newspaper man and supporter of LaFollette, testified he had been approached by a representative of the McCutcheon-Gurston syndicate, a subsidiary of the Shubert theatrical company, with an order to sell theatrical publicity to the LaFollette forces.

"Did the president know that you were paying their expenses?" asked Senator Caraway, Arkansas, acting chairman.

"No," said Waldo.

"Why didn't you tell him?"

"These men and women make large salaries and I did not see any reason why I should tell the president," replied Waldo.

"If that is true, why did you have to hire them to come down here as a non-partisan committee to take breakfast with the president?" Caraway continued.

"These people were not hired," retorted Waldo.

"How long did it take you to round up this bunch of actors to come down here to make the president laugh out loud?" Caraway asked.

"About ten days."

"What was your object?"

"To have them tell the president they were for him," said Waldo.

"And you wanted to fool the public," persisted Caraway. "Why didn't you tell the public their enthusiasm was paid for—so much per enthusiasm?"

"Did you pay for breakfast at the white house?" asked Caraway.

"Oh, no," Waldo replied seriously and the crowd in the hearing room laughed.

Waldo said in reply to questions by Frank P. Walsh, counsel for Senator LaFollette that he had arranged with Al Jolson to get the group together.

"And did he show you the songs that he was going to sing and make Cal laugh out loud?" asked Walsh.

"Yes."

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Lee Shubert of the Shubert Theatrical company, today denied that the McCutcheon-Gurston syndicate named in the senate committee investigating campaign funds as having offered the independent party theatrical publicity for $50,000, was in any way connected with the Shuberts.

AUDITOR MARSH IS NOT WITHDRAWING

Expreses Willingness for His Democratic Rival, C. E. Harman, to Drop by the Wayside.

"Shoo fly, don't bother me," the words of a song popular in the youthful days of men now old, constituted the reply of State Auditor Marsh when he was asked if he had anything to say about a statement of his rival, Clarence E. Harman, democratic candidate for auditor. Mr. Harman expressed some doubt in his statement as to who is really state auditor and closed by offering to withdraw from the ballot if Mr. Marsh will do the same, leaving the field clear for the progressive party candidate for auditor, William Anderson of Havelock.

Auditor Marsh said he had no intention of withdrawing, but if Mr. Harman felt that he is down and out as a candidate he might get off the ticket. In regard to a published statement that Mr. Marsh's son is a member of a firm in Omaha that makes a business of public auditing, Mr. Marsh said:

"My son sold his interest in that firm about two years ago. My son is not in the auditing business and has not been since then."

CONFESSION OF HOLMES

this hook thru the staple of the lock. At first the hook failed to work but he handed it to Stahr, he said, and Stahr bent it at the proper angle.

Holmes said he left the jail about 6:45 p. m., went one mile out of town, then back to town, entered the hardware store, stole a rifle and cartridges, then went to the Rcok Island railroad track and proceeded to Gilead. He went around towns on the way.

On Wednesday, October 22, he did not find Stahr at Gilead. He slept that night in the depot and stole some old coins from the depot agent's office.

Thursday night, Holmes again looked for Stahr in Gilead but did not find him. That night Holmes broke into a general store and stole some clothes and "eats." He told the officers to whom he confessed that he had made out a list of things he would need, a sort of a shopping list, which he intended to steal. The list he showed included a skillet, knife and fork, groceries and other articles needed in cooking.

His confession states that on Friday night, he broke into a public garage in Gilead and stole about $80 in cash, and then into a private garage and stole a Ford touring car, drove it almost to Nora and abandoned it.

Saturday, October 25, Holmes says he broke into the bank at Nora, rammed a hole thru the brick wall of the vault, went into the vault and stole $12 in cash. He then went to a straw stack in the vicinity of Nora, went to sleep and was captured by Sheriff Wood and a posse about 4 p. m., Sunday, October 26.

"It was my intention," says the confession of Holmes, "to come back to Nelson and help Stahr get out of jail. I figured he was still in jail because he failed to meet me as per our agreement. I was going to give him money enough to make good his bad checks."

Wounded Himself.

Holmes adds that Stahr helped take off a leg of a table but the two of them were unable to remove the bars of windows in that way.

Stahr's confession says he was committed to the county jail at Nelson October 6 for issuing no-fund checks, and he met Holmes there.

"We talked about escaping from jail at different times," he says in his signed statement, "and I made him believe that if I made an escape I would either meet him at Gilead on Wednesday, October 22, or would meet him later."

Stahr admits he told Holmes about the hardware store at Nelson and also told him the road to Gilead.

"I got out of jail about October 22," says Stahr, "but I did not go to meet Holmes as I had no intention of meeting him even when I made that agreement with him. It was my idea that if he made his escape then I could tell right quick and I would get the credit for reporting the matter."

Stahr admits helping pry at the bars of windows with a table leg and admits he promised to bring back into jail some hack saw blades when he should be let out to get money to make good his bad checks. He had told of Holmes cutting him with a knife and exhibited a gash about six or eight inches long on his thigh, a cut that was very shallow. In his confession Stahr says:

"The truth is I cut my own leg with a safety razor blade and Holmes did not cut me or tie my hands. The safety razor blade with which I inflicted the wound on my leg is now in the hands of Sheriff Wood, as I told him where I had put it on the table in the jail and I saw him find it there."

propaganda. The foreign office and every one of my colleagues in the government knew I would not tolerate this propaganda. They all know that as soon as I get anything that is authentic, anything that is trustworthy, I will communicate to the public without delay.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—Twenty-two million British voters went to the polls today to register their approval or disapproval of Ramsay MacDonald's labor government. Nine million of those voting are women.

Polling booths opened thruout England, Scotland, Wales and northern Ireland at 8 a. m.—in some cities and towns at 7 a. m.—and the results of the bitterest election campaign the country has seen will not be known until tomorrow.

Labor leaders admitted, however, that they had little hope of obtaining a majority of the 615 parliamentary seats. Nearly every one else conceded the conservatives considerable gains, which will put them into office after the MacDonald government resigns.

The twenty-one day campaign came to an end with political passions whipped to white heat by bitter partisan accusations and recriminations, the storm center being the "red letter"—the document attributed to Gregory Zinoviev, with whose name it is signed, which contains subversive suggestions to British communists.

The emancipation of women as evidenced by the evolution in dress from steel rays that made a twenty inch waist and the long street sweeping sikrts to the clothes of the present days has certainly had its effect upon the health of women. With proper attention to diet and exercise a race of better wives and mothers is assured by it. If however, ailments develop as evidenced by irregularities, backache, headaches, nervousness and irritability, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound may be depended upon to overcome them. TEST SUIT FOR PAPERS

STONE TO INSTITUTE PROCEEDINGS BEFORE LONG.

Complaint to Be Filed Against Newspaper Publishing Income Tax Returns to Secure Final Ruling.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—Attorney General Stone today studied lists of newspapers who printed income tax payments figures with a view of choosing from them one paper against which suit will be brought by the federal government to settle the conflict of statutes regarding publicity.

Personally holding that the publication of figures was not authorized in conformity with the laws as they stand, Stone will ask the courts thru the medium of the suit, to decide what the intent of congress was in enacting limited publicity and at the same time enacting a penalty for publication.

On the face of the situation, Stone holds, papers had no right to print the figures because the law apparently gave the commissioner of internal revenue discretion to prescribe the manner in which figures would be open to public inspection. He pointed out that the sole place authorized was in the office of internal revenue collectors.

Nevertheless, Stone recognizes that there are kinks and twists to the law which cannot be definitely settled short of the courts, the final interpretors of statutes and to clear up the confusion, will start the test suit immediately perhaps today.

Papers in all sections of the country printed the figures and Stone had a wide field to choose from. At least one paper, the Cincinnati Post, already has had the preliminary formalities of prosecution instituted against it, thru a citation delivered to the United States district attorney by the Internal revenue collector of its district.

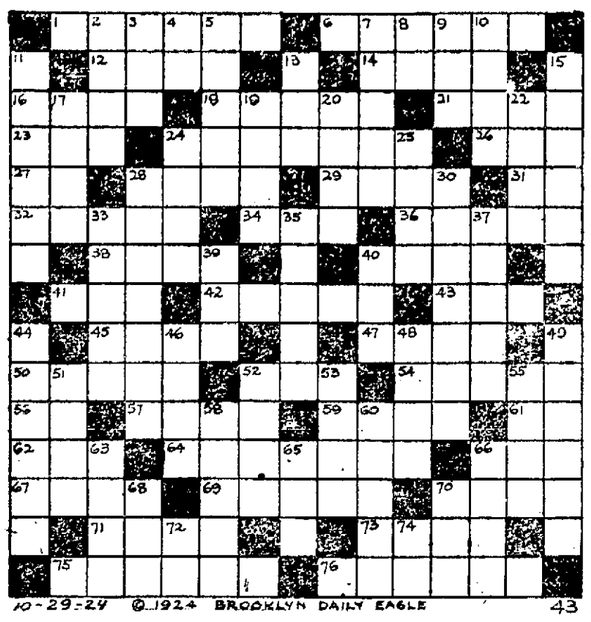

Stone may choose the Post because of the advancement of the case or may select any of a hundred other papers. Four papers in Washington printed figures and the attorney general may choose to bring the action here where he can give his personal attention to the suit.

Several questions in connection with prosecutions for publication remain to be settled by the attorney general or the courts, among them. If the courts hold publication illegal, will the government prosecute every paper which printed tax lists? Does each individual tax payment printed constitute a separate offense, rendering the paper liable to the fine of $1,000 for each payment printed? Does the individual who had his tax payment printed have grounds for separate suit against the paper? If courts impose jail sentences, who will serve—publisher, editor or reporter?

The penalty provided in section 3167 for publication is not more than $1,000 fine or one year in prison, or both.

Scarcely any one believes that if the test case is decided against the paper selected to be sued it will be content with the decision with the federal district court. The case, it is felt, will ultimately go to the United States supreme court court, hastened there with the assistance of the department of justice.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Advertisement.

Police headquarters have taken the appearance of an opportunity school since Marshall Lewis started tagging cars parked without rear lights. With Officer Lewis and Judge Moore as instructors, the owners of the offending cars learn that they are offending an ordinance of seven years' standing but which has not been enforced until the last few weeks. A text card is passed around which also informs of the existing two hour parking limit on Warren avenue. No fines have been imposed as yet altho more than fifty offenders have been summoned to the station. Officer Lewis selects the less busy nights for his tagging activities. Monday night being one when he set out with a handful of tags, but found only seven offenders. This points to the efficiency of the system, he thinks, for when the action was first taken it was impossible to tag all the unlighted cars for lack of tags. Their outstanding offender, Judge Moore stated, was the man who was highly offended because he was not fined. He objected to going to the police station for anything that savored of a social nature.

ARMED MEN ROB BANK

Eight Bandits in Automobiles Loot Vault at Soldier, Ia., of $5,000.

SOLDIER, Ia., Oct. 29.—A gang of bandits estimated to number from eight to twelve men descended upon this town of 500 early this morning, cut all telegraph, telephone and electric light wires, posted guards at strategic points thruout the town, tore down the walls of the vault of the Soldier Valley Savings bank with crowbars, dynamited the safe with nitroglycerine and escaped in two high powered automobiles with $1,000 in cash and $5,500 in bonds.

Dr. E. P. Junger, president of the bank, who lives next door to the institution, fired more than fifty rifle shots at the bandits as they worked on the safe. The fire was returned with sawed off shot guns and Dr. Junger's house was riddled with bullets.

Citizens came to the aid of Dr. Junger and a pitched battle with the bandits was staged.

Posses were formed and started in pursuit of the bandits.

Soldier is about twenty miles east of Little Sioux where a week ago a bandit gang carried out a similar raid and escaped with $5,000.

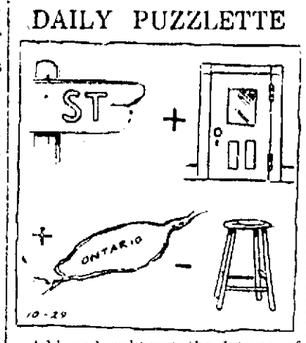

The robbers entered the town at 1 a. m. and had completed their work and left at 3 a. m.

Five Soldier citizens were captured and imprisoned by the bandits. Tony Chamberlain and Miss Tilly Mallun, a young couple returning from a dance, were forced at the point of revolvers to enter a railway section house. The bandits locked them in the building.

Howard Wertz and Ward Conger, railway men, were locked in the tool house.

John Dickinson, aroused by the firing, ran from his home only to be captured by a "lookout," who forced him to lie in the street until the gang had completed its work.

Gas On Stomach Makes People Nervous

Mrs. Cook Nervous 12 Years Due to Gas

"For 12 years I suffered from gas on the stomach and was nervous and short of breath. Adlerika has done me more good than anything." (signed) Lela Cook.

Intestinal Evacuant

There is now offered to the public a liquid preparation which is not only a wonderfully effective and QUICK intestinal evacuant, but which also seems to stimulate the glands of the intestinal tract and to cause expulsion of flatus (GAS.) The preparation, known as Adlerika, is a valuable agent for the purpose of cleansing the bowels of matter which has been in the system a long time and which other less effective means have been unable to dislodge. It is often astonishing the great amount of matter Adlerika draws from the intestinal canal—even right after a natural movement it sometimes brings out unsuspected quantities of additional matter. Many times it brings out much GAS, thus relieving pressure in the abdomen. Adlerika is especially valuable when PROMPT action is necessary or to encourage the elimination of metabolic poisons through the bowel.

In slight disorders such as occasional constipation or gas on the stomach and headache (when due to bowel inaction) a single spoonful of Adlerika often produces surprising and gratifying results. In cases of obstinate constipation or stomach trouble, if Adlerika does not bring relief in 24 to 36 hours the advice of a reputable physician should be secured.

Reports from Physicians.

"I congratulate you on the good effect from Adlerika since I prescribed it." (Signed) Dr. L. Langlois.

"Adlerika is the best in my entire 37 years' experience." (Signed) Dr. E. Eggers.

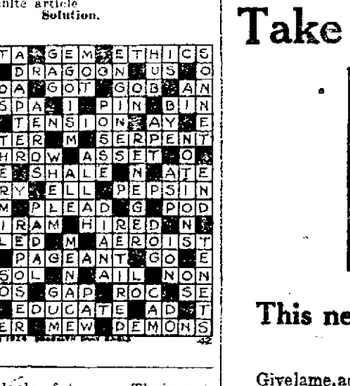

"I prescribed Adlerika with highly satisfactory results." (Signed) Dr. A. C. C. (Name given on request.)

"I can't get along without Adlerika." (Signed) Dr. W. H. Bernhart.

J. E. Puckett (a user of Adlerika) writes: "After taking Adlerika feel better than for 20 years. Haven't language to express the impurities eliminated from my system."

Adlerika is a big surprise to people who have used only ordinary bowel and stomach medicines because of its REAL and QUICK action. Sold in Lincoln by the Hickey Pharmacy and by leading druggists everywhere.—Advertisement.

Helpful Advice to Overworked Women

MRS. C. E. CHAPMAN
1920 ELM ST., NEW ALBANY, IND.

DAY in and day out, week in and week out the tired, over-worked housewife and mother toils on, sweeping, dusting, cooking, cleaning and mending. Is it any wonder that after a time a weakness, such as Mrs. Chapman had, develops and the wife and mother pays a toll in physical weakness and pain for her efforts of love, the natural result of overwork?

Women who find themselves afflicted with weakness, pain, headaches, backache, nervousness, irritability and melancholia will be interested in Mrs. Chapman's letter, and should realize that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, is especially adapted to overcome such conditions.

Mrs. Chapman's Letter Reads as Follows:

NEW ALBANY, IND.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a weakness which many women have from over work, and from which I suffered for quite a while. I wasn't fit to do my work and my sister advised me to take this medicine. After the first few days the pains were not so severe as they had been and after taking a few bottles I am not bothered any more. I am doing my housework every day and highly recommend the Vegetable Compound to any woman suffering from female trouble. Only yesterday a friend called me on the 'phone and knowing what it did for me wanted to know what to ask for at the drug-store as she meant to give it a trial."—MRS. C. E. CHAPMAN, 1920 Elm Street, New Albany, Indiana.

Another Case of Nervous Breakdown

MEMPHIS, TENN.—"Two years ago I was completely run-down and my nerves were a wreck. I could not sweep a room without resting. I could not do any of my work except a little at a time and the doctor's medicine did not help me. One day some one threw a little book on to my porch and in it I read several testimonials of women who had been like myself. I went right out and got me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and before I had taken the whole of that bottle I knew it was helping me. I took six bottles and then in about three months I took two more. Now I am in perfect health. I do all my own work and could do more. I can truly say that I know Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound gave me my health."—MRS. O. J. HINCKLEY, 1515 E. Georgia St., Memphis, Tenn.

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—Late sharp rally sent grain futures to a sharply higher close on the board of trade today. Outstanding feature that carried wheat from an extremely low level to a sharply higher close, was the working of over a million bushel for export. The full bulge however did not hold and those who bought on the dip realized later.

Continued poor husking returns and buying of old corn by feeders strengthened the corn market. The buying was stimulated by leading experts' reiteration of poor prospects and low quality yields.

Working of some exports and strength in other cereals were responsible for oats sharp upturn. Provisions finished higher with grains and cables.

Wall Street Journal Review.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Stocks displayed steadiness in the early dealings despite some disappointment over the showing of United States steel for the third quarter in which the balance of the common fell three cents short of covering the extra dividend of 50c. But the fact that steel earned at the rate of almost $7 a share annually on low prices and operations of not much more than 50 per cent was considered remarkable and early selling was well absorbed.

Steel dropped to 107¾ off a point from the high of the previous session but quickly recovered half. Other industrial leaders were steady around the previous close. Maxwell A. stock reached a new 1924 high at 70, reflecting the belief that action will be taken with regard to placing the issue on an $8 dividend basis.

Weather Conditions.

The northwestern storm area is still centered on the north Pacific coast, but a decided fall in pressure has extended to the eastern slope of the Rockies, and unseasonably warm weather prevails in the Mountain and Plain states and the Mississippi and Missiuro valleys. Rain has fallen in most of the territory west of the Rockies, with snow and high winds in Utah. Rain will probably extend to this vicinity by Thursday night.

"Dat ain't his full name," she explained. "Dat's jest whut I calls 'im fur short. Dat chile's full name is Morphine."

"Ain't you never heerd de word 'morphine?'"

Men and Things

Political campaigns cost a lot of money, and a considerable part of it is wasted in the sense that it accomplishes little direct benefit to the party in whose interest it is expended Very little of it is used in bribery any more, because outside the big cities the purchasable element is so small that it is not worth buying. Like everything else the cost of campaigns has about doubled, for the reason that workers, stationery and the like have vastly increased. The Nebraska secretary of state has 410,000 voters on his mailing list, and to reach these with a small pamphlet in an envelope carrying a one cent stamp it costs about $10,000. If a two cent stamp be used the cost is $15,000. And what campaign committee can rest contented with sending out one letter to voters!

Campaign expenses are run up on each other by the committees, all of which will take all the money they can get and spend it without violating any law. The competition in dressing between fashionables in a community is no more intense than that between committees in spending money to secure a favorable consideration by voters of what they have to offer, and the result is akin in that after the painting and powdering in one case and the pulling and hauling in the other, very little change has been made in what the lawyers call the status quo.

A large part of the expense of campaigns nowadays is for workers. These are working men who are employed to go around among other laborers and talk up the particular ticket or cause for which they are employed, or men who can speak a foreign language going among the respective nationalities to explain, argue and cajole, or men especially fitted to accomplish various delicate tasks It is out of these activities and the attritions that result that much of the whispering that characterizes a campaign comes. A very considerable number of votes in campaigns are changed by the things whispered in their ears or what is the equivalent, told to them in private conversation. The expense of workers can easily run into the thousands of dollars.

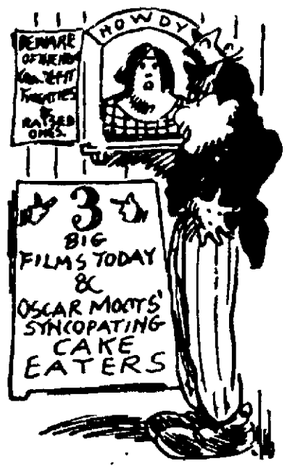

We have no criticism to make if it be true that the negro vote is being split up. Every vote ought to be split up, the labor vote, the southern vote, the German, Swedish, Bohemian and all down the line. It is the mark of intelligent action on the part of electors when it is done. It means that the men and women in these blocs of votes are doing their own thinking and not allowing any man whether he be preacher, poet or peasant to tell them how to vote It is out of independence of this sort that we are most likely to get good government. Those workers, for instance, who believe a labor government will help them are unconsciously violating the American ideal of government, and only storing up trouble for everybody.

Some curious theories are evolved out of the brain of man. We read the other day where a northwest Nebraska man suggested that we can solve the freight rate qustion by naming a commission made up of representatives of the various producing associations whose prices are in part dependent on the transportation charges. In a similar way we could evolve the wage question by allowing the workers in each industry to fix their compensation for the future, and we could also call together all those who pay interest on money to decide what rates are fair and just for the future.

It is apparent that our universities are not measuring up to the fullness of their opportunities. There ought to be a department of Political Promising. At the present time our candidates are forced to depend upon their own untrained efforts along this line. This results in those less gifted in promising benefits to the voters being handicapped, and while this might be justified on the ground that as long as we judge the capabilities of candidates by their prowess as promisers we are best served by those who can promise most, yet it is not consistent with our national idea of equality When we consider what big promisers some of our amateurs are, we can get an idea of what might be done by university trained men.

It is not particularly to our credit that all of the fuss that is ever made about campaign funds is before election when those who have been able to get the least make a loud noise and fuss about the party that is able to collect one of respectable proportions. La-Follette made the welkin ring with charges that he failed to prove in their sinister implication, but after it is over you will hear nothing from him and the others who now show signs of vast perturbation. That has been true in the past and will be in the future If it is a crime during a campaign to collect more money than the other fellow, it should be a crime also after the campaign is over. There is no better evidence of the fakery of the charge than that after an election the whole matter is dropped

BRAIN TESTS

(By Sam Loyd.)

Five Minutes to Answer This.

When Uncle Josh was in town he got a kink in his neck trying to count the floors of the Flatiron Building. However he evolved a neat little problem out of his experience, which he sprang in his home-town barber shop, as follows:

"My years are greater by eleven than double the number of floors in that skyscraper, and if you will multiply one-tenth of my age by one-quarter the number of floors, the result will be my wife's age, and she admits to having lived only four-fifths of my time on earth."

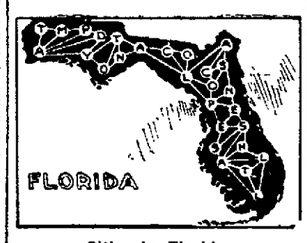

How old is Uncle Josh?
